He 'Knows People,' Press Too

John D Booster Joins Race

By FRASER KELLY,
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Alberta MP Hugh Horner, who wants to "get rid of the garbage in parliament" and take the tariff off lariet ropes, announced Thursday he intends to run for the leadership of the Conservative party.

In a shoot-from-the-hip press conference which dumfounded newsmen, the 42-year-old surgeon said he would run against leader John Diefenbaker whom he described as "the greatest politician in our history."

He spent most of the news conference scorching newsmen for "crucifying" Mr. Diefenbaker. He added that most parliamentary reporters and television commentators are left-wing incompetents unqualified for their jobs.

And he agreed with his brother Jack (Cons. — Acadia) who said last week newsmen here are "vultures" who pick the bones of politicians and ignore serious news.

As a matter of fact, he said, it was the press coverage of the recent transport debate which convinced him to seek the leadership.

With the air of pugnacious confidence that has made him and his brother legends in Parliament Hill, Dr. Horner stared down newsmen who questioned his qualifications and seriousness.

His main qualification, he said, was his knowledge of the people.

UNIFICATION OVER HUMP

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave second reading, or approval in principle, Thursday night to the government's controversial armed forces unification bill after rejecting 88 to 75 a Conservative amendment to send the bill to committee without second-reading approval.

It made for a surprise ending to a debate which most MPs had originally predicted would last about two weeks.

The Conservative move sought to refer the legislation to the defence and external affairs committees for public hearing before a vote on second reading—the key stage involving approval in principle.

A legal authority said adoption of the motion would have killed the bill and could have brought down the minority government.

The 64 Conservatives on hand drew voting support from 11 NDP members.

Ranked against them were 78 Liberals, six Creditistes, three Social Credit members and one independent, Maurice Allard (Sherbrooke).

ALMOST HOUR

The Commons division bells rang for about an hour and a half before the vote.

Immediately after the defeat of the Conservative amendment was announced, a vote was called on the government motion for second reading. No opposition MP rose to keep the debate going.

The second vote was 88 to 75.

SWITCHED SIDES

This time only 62 Conservatives opposed the government. The 78 Liberals drew support from 10 NDP members, six Creditistes, three Social Credit members and Mr. Allard.

Standings in the 265-seat House are: Liberals 130, Conservatives 88, NDP 21, Creditistes 5, Social Credit 5, Independent 3, vacant 2.

HELLYER PRESSED

Earlier Thursday Conservative speakers in the debate continued to press Defence Minister Hellyer to allow committee hearings before the vote was called.

Mr. Hellyer insisted on following the regular House procedure.

Budget Today: $700,000,000?

Premier Bennett will bring down his budget for the 1967-68 fiscal year in the legislature at 2:30 p.m. today. The Throne Speech debate wound up Thursday.

It is expected the budget will surpass the $700,000,000 mark, compared with B.C.'s total of about $650,000,000 for the current fiscal year which ends March 31.

The new budget will include an estimated $28,000,000 in additional tax rebates from Ottawa, to replace several federal-provincial cost-sharing programs which expire March 31.

Shelf Tools May Amaze

By JACK FRY

Long, serpentine suction tubes with closed-circuit television tubes for eyes may one day be used for vacuuming minerals from the sea bottom, says a Victoria marine architect who hopes to get in on the early exploration of B.C.'s continental shelf.

This is just one far-out idea for oceanic mining put forward by John Case, an open-minded but practical research engineer who heads the five-man marine architectural firm of Case Existological Laboratories Ltd.

Another idea for mining the manganese nodules which have been found on Jervis Inlet by a UBC oceanographic team might be an underwater tank-like vehicle with a bucket loader—but these things are still a long way off.

North Koreans Attack Outpost

SEOUL (UPI)—North Korean troops attacked a South Korean outpost near the central portion of the demilitarized zone between the two countries early today, the South Korean defence ministry reported. One North Korean was reported killed in a 20-minute gun battle.

Car Expert Quits

Weakened Rules Worth 'Nothing'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—William Steiglitz, one of the government's top safety engineers who helped write the new U.S. car safety standards, resigned Thursday charging that the standards "contribute nothing to auto safety."

Steiglitz, a pioneer in car and aviation safety, and a full-time consultant for the National Traffic Safety Agency, was accused by William Haddon, the government's traffic safety chief, of "pushing wildly impractical" car safety standards.

According to Haddon, Steiglitz's approach to the car safety problem would have forced the industry to build cars that in "some respects would have approached or exceeded the performance of a Sherman tank."

THREE WITHDRAWN

On Tuesday, the agency issued modified standards applying to 1968 cars to be produced this fall. It also withdrew three controversial standards previously prepared.

Steiglitz, who directed the engineering development of the standards, attacked the changes in his letter of resignation.

NOT ACCEPTABLE

"The standards are now so weakened from the proposed standards that, in my considered judgement as an engineering and safety specialist, they do not establish an acceptable minimum level of safety," he told a reporter.

Steiglitz said the standards originally proposed Nov. 30 were "technically feasible and attainable." He added: "Some involved only simple engineering and structural design."

CAN BE MEASURED

While the industry said it was impossible to measure the effectiveness of dashboard energy absorption, Steiglitz cited just such measurements made by Chrysler in 1965 and the Federal Aviation Agency.

Finally, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who was the host at that table, felt called upon to defend Mrs. Douglas and began answering every spiteful comment aimed at her.

For Now

U.S. Calls Tune

OTTAWA (CP) — United States car-safety laws will set the pattern for safety features in Canada until the federal and provincial governments decide which of them will make Canadian laws on the subject.

That was Industry Minister Drury's message to the Commons justice committee Thursday as study resumed on proposals by private MPs that Parliament use its right to enact car-safety legislation.

The proposals would require a number of safety features and devices to be built into cars and make the industry responsible for maintaining safety.

APPROACH REJECTED

Mr. Drury's appearance before committee, informal because the committee couldn't raise a quorum of 10 MPs, amounted to government rejection of this approach.

Larry Shettle, UAW international representative, said that 10 years ago the industry cut its inspection staff by half and gave responsibility for inspection to the production men.

Ship-Jumper Confesses

Uncle's Name O'Neal Union Official's Casey

VANCOUVER (CP) — Union organizer Pat O'Neal disclosed Thursday he came to Canada as a ship-jumper.

He said his real name is Thomas Joseph Casey and the name he has been using — Edward Patrick O'Neal — is that of an uncle in the United States.

Mr. O'Neal made the disclosures in answer to questioning by his lawyer, Edward Mortimer, at the opening of Thursday's sitting of a royal commission on electronic eavesdropping and invasion of privacy.

He told the commission he came to Victoria while working on a ship in 1947. He asked for a half-day off, left the ship and went to work.

"You mean you deserted?" asked Commissioner R. A. Sargent.

"Yes, your honor."

Mr. O'Neal, who now is western regional organizer for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper

Casey

Mill Workers, said he then had no passport and no landed immigrant status.

In 1962, when he was secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, he went to the Irish embassy to obtain a passport and to the immigration department to tell them of his background.

Three weeks later he was told he would get landed immigrant status, which subsequently was granted.

Mr. O'Neal became a central figure in the royal commission inquiry after he admitted hiring private detective Weldon Graham to place listening devices in downtown hotel rooms being used by delegates to a convention of the rival Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

The devices were discovered and Mr. O'Neal stated he had hired the detective after meeting with two members of the RCMP security and intelligence branch.

Premier Bennett ordered the commission.

Mr. O'Neal came under fire from other trade unionists, who demanded his resignation as an executive of the B.C. Federation of Labor. He resigned last week.

White House Fiasco

Cold Cuts with Everything

By MAXINE CHESHIRE

WASHINGTON (LAT) — Elderly Justice William O. Douglas's 23-year-old bride has become something of a cause celebre since an embarrassing incident at a White House dinner.

At the state dinner where members of the Supreme Court and their wives were guests, the youthful Mrs. Douglas found herself seated at a table with actress Joan Crawford.

The one-time screen queen began a belittling barrage that continued throughout the meal. She insulted Mrs. Douglas repeatedly with scathing, scornful remarks about her background, her manners and even her much-publicized love of the outdoors.

This situation got so tense that the three men seated closest to the two women rallied protectively around

Mrs. Douglas. Presidential assistant Joe Califano, between the ladies, tried gallantly to keep them separated verbally. The U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, Sol Linowitz, did what he could to divert Mrs. Crawford's attention.

Finally, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who was the host at that table, felt called upon to defend Mrs. Douglas and began answering every spiteful comment aimed at her.

This failed to put Mrs. Crawford in her place. She eventually made one action speak louder than all her unkind words. When finger bowls were set before each guest, she rose halfway out of her chair, and leaned across Califano. She then snatched, dilly and all from in front of Mrs. Douglas, and deposited them where Emily Post says they ought to be.

The implication was plain that a girl of humble origins, dining for the first time in such splendor, would not know what to do with a finger bowl unless shown.

The ordeal did not end until another male guest said gently: "Miss Crawford, you're too big a woman to behave in such a manner."

Soviet Bloc Looks At Bonn

EAST BERLIN (Reuters) — Foreign ministers of the Soviet Union and its six Warsaw Pact allies will meet here Monday to discuss relations with West Germany, sources said Thursday.

The meeting, proposed by Walter Ulbricht, the East German Communist chief, will probably last two days.

Red Guards Fight Red Guards

TOKYO (UPI) — Rival Red Guard groups supporting Mao Tse-tung battled in the streets of Peking last Monday and more than 250 people were injured, Kyodo news agency reported Thursday.

The agency's Peking correspondent, quoting wall posters, said the two groups clashed in a fight for control of a police station in Peking's western suburbs.

Peking Radio Claim:

U.S., Russians Foiled In Invasion Threat

TOKYO (AP)—Radio Peking charged Thursday that the United States, the Soviet Union and Japan had engaged in "a criminal plot" to use Manchuria's Heilungkiang province as the gateway for an attack on China.

This alleged plot was foiled when the army and Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's supporters seized control of Heilungkiang after bloody fighting, Tuesday, the broadcast added.

China has accused the Soviet Union of massing troops along the Siberian border next to Heilungkiang. How U.S. and Japanese forces—far from Manchuria—could be involved was not explained.

Vatican Issue Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP)—Now that Russia will exchange ambassadors with the Vatican, will Canada finally recognize the Vatican?

The question was brought up in the Commons Thursday by R. G. L. Fairweather (PC-Royal).

Prime Minister Pearson said the government's position has not changed since he spoke on the subject in the House on May 19, 1964. His reply was greeted by general laughter.

The Commons record for 1964 shows that Louis-Joseph Pigeon, then Conservative MP for Joliette - L'Assomption - Montcalm, asked whether Canada would send an ambassador to the Vatican that year.

Mr. Pearson replied: "This matter has been under consideration during the last year, and it was under consideration for the five years previous."

Johnson Awaits 'Any Red Step'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Thursday the United States would be prepared to stop bombing North Vietnam if the leaders there would take "just almost any step" to justify such action.

Asked whether he would be ready to meet his opposite number—North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh—Johnson told a press conference: "We made it clear we would be very happy to have appropriate arrangements made for meetings at whatever level seemed best."

Johnson said that in his judgment the Communist country's leadership has not made any serious effort thus far to bring the war to an end—but he threw the door wide open to any move and invited Hanoi to use it.

He was asked whether Hanoi's talks last weekend of possible peace talks if the bombing were ended would be sufficient reason in his view to end it.

"I've seen nothing they've said that indicates any seriousness on their part," he said.

LONDON (UPI)—Russia's ambassador to London said the Kremlin intends "to secure a peace settlement" in Vietnam, taking into account the Viet Cong and Hanoi conditions as "the basis for discussion," it was reported Thursday.

At the same time, he warned that further escalation of the war by the United States would lead to increased Soviet aid to the Communists in Vietnam, and repeated the threat of sending "volunteer" fighting forces.

The Soviet position was set out by Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovski at a meeting with representatives of the British Council for Peace in Vietnam.

Students Return To Peking

Airlift to Move Women, Children

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia plans to evacuate all women and children attached to the besieged Soviet Embassy in Peking, official sources said Thursday.

Final plans have been prepared for an airlift operation likely to start within the next few days.

The official sources, however, denied knowledge of plans to cut the size of the embassy down to a skeleton level.

HEARD NOTHING Based on a report that the Soviet government plans such a cut and will demand a reciprocal reduction in the size of the Chinese Embassy here, a foreign spokesman commented: "I have not heard anything about this."

Strike Backs Opposition To U.K. Move

VALETTA (Reuters)—Merchants staged a two-hour strike Thursday to back Malta's stand against Britain's decision to reduce its defence force here by two-thirds.

Malta claims that by the cut Britain has forfeited all its rights under a 1964 defence agreement between the two countries.

Maid Kept Out, Court Told In Brutality Case

MONTREAL (CP)—A chambermaid at a Montreal motel testified Thursday at a preliminary hearing into charges of police brutality that men accompanying Louis Sicotte ordered many changes of linen and towels but would not let her enter the room.

Annette Paquette, 56, an employee of Travel Motor Lodge in suburban Dorval, was the 10th witness to testify at the hearing into charges against 11 Quebec policemen and four private fire investigators.

ARSON CASES The hearing arose from a $250,000 civil suit filed by Sicotte, a 40-year-old Montreal businessman. He alleged that police used brutal force on him during an investigation of arson cases in 1965.

Dr. Napoleon Martinez, a Montreal neurosurgeon, testified Wednesday that Sicotte had been treated for 21 rib fractures and a broken big toe on admission to hospital Nov. 17, 1965. At Thursday's hearing, Mrs. Paquette testified that she at last was permitted to enter Room 116 of the motel after being barred for several days. She cleaned up the room, but was forbidden to enter the bathroom.

Sicotte, she said, appeared to be ill and could barely walk. Earlier, two policemen from Dorval and a member of the RCMP testified that they went to room 116 acting on a tip from a man identified only as Mr. Manuel.

EXAMINED PAPERS The policemen and the RCMP agent said they examined the papers produced by the two men with Sicotte, who were identified as Constable Rejean Bouthillier of the Montreal police and Pierre Ricard, a fire underwriter's bureau investigator.

The RCMP agent said he observed Sicotte roll his eyes. The man had a "haggard" expression.

Ten provincial policemen, four private fire investigators and one Quebec City policeman are charged with wounding Sicotte with intent during interrogation sessions on arson cases.

Strikers Ponder Montreal Offer

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal offered its 4,500 striking clerical workers pay increases Thursday that would amount to $900 during the next two years.

Lucien Saulnier, chairman of the executive committee, said that was the limit of the city's offer. Anything more would have "serious consequences for our whole economic equilibrium."

UNDER CONSIDERATION Union president Andre Lancelotti and the negotiating committee were considering the new proposal.

The strikers, members of the National Union of Municipal Employees, walked off the job at noon Monday. They had demanded an increase of 20 per cent in a two-year contract plus $700. Clerical workers now earn $5,600 a year.

NO CHARGES Also on Quebec's troubled labor front, the frustration of parents of 217,000 Montreal students mounted as the strike of 9,000 Roman Catholic teachers continued. There have been no classes since Jan. 13.

A spokesman for Quebec's 2,300 interns and resident doctors in 43 teaching hospitals said no progress has been made in negotiations for higher salaries since the doctors turned down the latest government offer two weeks ago.

WORK STOPPAGE

The spokesman said the Syndicat des Medecins Residents du Quebec, which represents the interns and doctors, has received no new salary offer despite Tuesday's 24-hour work stoppage because of the government's delay in negotiating new salaries.

Meanwhile, a health department official in Quebec City said negotiations between the government and the syndicate have been suspended until July 1.

Dome City World's First

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Walt Disney Productions announced Thursday it will build the world's first glass-domed city in central Florida amid Disney World, a vast $100,000,000 entertainment development.

Officials said the huge centre will be five times the size of Disneyland in California.

We Are Committed

THE LAST HOPE of modifying the armed forces' unification bill, bitterly opposed inside and out of Parliament by those who fear and resent the inevitable destruction of the identity of the historic three arms of the services, has been quenched by the declaration that the New Democratic Party will support the measure.

Mr. Andrew Green, the party's chief defence critic from Toronto-Greenwood, has told the Commons that his 21-member group will vote for unification but with some reluctance; not because of the inherent disruptiveness of its terms but because the defence minister had refused to make a clear statement on the future role of the armed forces.

He called the Liberal defence policy "evasive, inadequate and ambiguous."

How, in consistency and in view of this qualification, his party can support the bill is something difficult to justify.

Social Credit members were committed to the support of unification earlier by their defence critic, Mr. A. B. Patterson, from Fraser Valley. But this was not unexpected from an insignificant group whose chief distinction has been its willingness to act the part of lackey to the administration.

As for the Creditistes of Quebec, they have "injected a complete lack of interest in the bill, having contributed nothing to the debate."

In fact, the House has demonstrated a peculiar indifference generally, for in the latter stages of discussion of this proposed legislation, of such vital concern to every serviceman and, indeed, the nation, the Commons has been able to muster only a bare quorum.

The warnings of so many senior officers have gone unheeded. The resistance of men who have sacrificed their careers to their principles has borne for them only a bitter fruit. Their loyalties and their courage the exponents of the unification experiment have attempted to discredit. But they would not surrender.

Elsewhere on this page Admiral William Landymore's last effort to reach the minds of members of Parliament—and, incidentally, to put his own attitude towards unification in honest perspective—proves the measure of his devotion.

For all of those who have tried to reason with the radical reformers the outcome of this long engagement must prove to be a lesson in frustration; and that the nature of politics is such that once the party lines are drawn all argument is aimless and persuasion pointless.

Now that we must embark upon this adventure in military planning we shall make the best of it. But the disturbing thought remains that an irreparable damage has been done to a system of enlistment, organization and utilization tested and proved effective in a fierce fire that only those who have been in combat can truly appreciate.

Intentions Clear

REGARDLESS of their political stripe, racial origin, age or creed, few Canadians will be able to find fault with the prime minister's outline of policy relating to foreign investment in Canada.

In an unusually realistic frame of mind, Mr. Pearson told the nation Wednesday night that foreign capital will continue to be needed for Canadian development as well as the "know how" that goes with it. And because of this, he said, discriminatory or unfair treatment of those willing to invest in Canada must be avoided.

But to this he added: "We must insist that foreign capital and foreign enterprise become Canadian in their operation in our country; subject to Canadian law only and responsive to Canadian policy."

Another major objective he said was that Canadians should own and control as much of the nation's industry as possible and have the maximum possible control of its resources and economic development.

This, he said, would be achieved "not by action which is unfair to foreign interests but by positive action which will marshal and encourage Canadian capital to invest increasingly in Canadian enterprises."

Mr. Pearson must be congratulated for not only making what must be the most—if not the only—decisive statement he has yet made on any single subject since taking office, but for realizing the urgent need for clarifying a situation which has been confusing Canadians and foreigners alike.

The major question now remaining to be answered on this matter is whether or not Mr. Pearson's government can successfully move the nation along the guidelines it has set.

Lying Garbage

BY THEIR RUBBISH we know them—the tribes and the peoples that inhabited this land hundreds or thousands of years ago. Where they lived they left the relics of their way of living mixed in the time-telling layers of soil. Their exhumed tools and weapons and ornaments identify and date them. And it seems quite possible that millenniums hence, our own discarded will be picked over with great interest by the archaeologists of a far-distant age, especially if in the interim, civilized man has managed to eliminate his mind and his inventions for a time from the face of the earth.

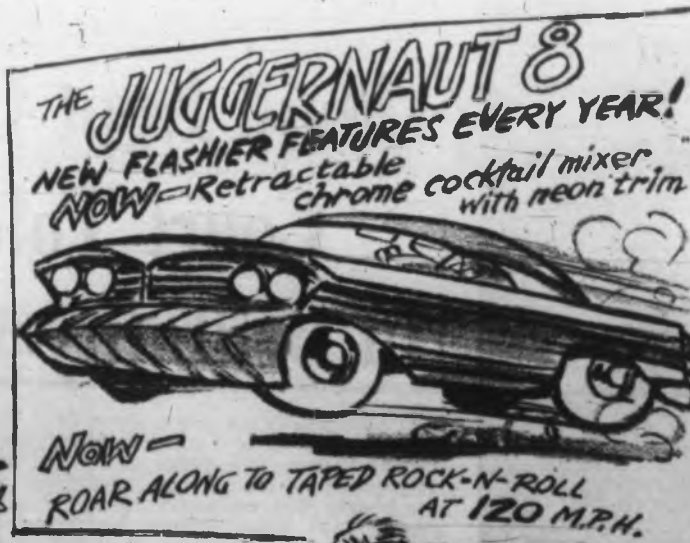

But if we want to be known for what we are, we shouldn't make our garbage tell falsehoods.

The Washington Post has waxed enthusiastic about a scientific use of junk. The oceanographic laboratory of the U.S. department of the interior, it seems, has found a use for empty beer bottles. It intends to launch 10,000 of them with messages enclosed, requesting data on their ocean travels so that currents can be measured.

But what, the Post asks, of all the old beer cans that litter the landscape, and the derelict cars that require acres of land for their rusting? Could not science stretch its imagination further and dump the old cars and the beer cans on the ocean shelf "to make harboring places for fish, which dote on wrecks?"

Certainly not.

To the inhabitants of the hinterland of the continent, this might seem an attractive idea. But on the coast we have our reputation to think of. Shoreline rise and fall. And it is obvious what conclusions the archaeologists of say 60967 AD could come to if digging into the strata of the late 1900s in our parts, they found almost nothing but square miles of preserved wrecked vehicles and brew containers.

Walter Gordon Gets Preference In Cabinet Order of Precedence

TO use one of Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's favorite expressions, is he "credible" any more?

With Walter (Wonderful) Gordon back in the cabinet "in group," some suspect as No. 3 in the ranking power elite—which would put him next in line after Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin—can Mitchell Sharp be taken seriously now as Finance minister?

Look at the evidence. Especially at the Table of Precedence—the political pecking order in the "estate" system in which this rank-and-status-conscious national capital puts such stock—where Sharp is junior to Gordon.

By actual count, Walter Gordon comes sixth, with only the prime minister, Paul Martin, of course, and Trade Minister Winter, Transport Minister Picherill and Defence Minister Hellyer preceding him.

But examine carefully that precedence. The power of the prime minister and the grandeur of Paul Martin are unquestioned. Naturally.

Not so with Bob Winter's third-ranking spot. The PM doesn't consult him any more on cabinet changes, and anyway, he's at open odds with Walter Gordon and all he stands for is that shows you where the trade minister rates, power-wise.

And while "Pick" in No. 4 spot is the coolest, cleverest cat of them all politically, the transport minister, even by the wildest stretch of imagination, can scarcely be classed as one of the cabinet "swingers," as those of the "in-group" like to hear themselves called—so you can figure where that leaves him in "minister-power."

Then with No. 5, Paul Hellyer, openly fidgeting with impatience to try the prime minister's leadership shoes for size, you can pretty well take it for granted that the defence minister's unabashed ambition hasn't exactly been endearing him where it counts.

So along comes Walter Gordon, sixth on the precedence totem pole, but really No. 3 in the leverage-of-power, the Mr. Big after the PM and Oom Paul.

Precedence isn't the only tip-off. Look at the latest assignment for Walter Gordon, appointed by the prime minister to boss that special cabinet committee that's going to comb through the Canadian industrial establishment with a sharply critical eye out for foreign ownership and control.

And who's just an ordinary committee member, serving under Chairman Gordon? Who else but Not-So-Sharp Mitchell, that's who.

"There he'll be captive of the 'swingers,'" with Gordon, Manpower Minister Marchand and young cabinet Turk John Turner in charge. The fifth member, Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet will be little more than a fifth wheel.

All of which leaves Mitchell Sharp alone in Right—as against Left—economic field.

And what a switch for Mitch that is when you remember how tongue-tied he was, slung it out at last fall's Liberal convention, with Gordon so out-Sharped.

But perhaps the true measure of Gordon's political potency is his tremendous talent for survival.

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

None of the senior hands of the cabinet—including Winters, "Pick," Sharp, Hellyer, Martin, McInnis, Drury, Lalor or Nicholson—wanted Walter Gordon back.

But back he came. And with the prime minister's very own special blessing.

Back over such objections as must have come from Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher, one of the four Liberals running the provinces, who is on the record with this:

"I know a lot about socialism, and have known a lot of Socialists in my time, and I say that Walter Gordon is the worst and most dangerous Socialist in Canada today because he's got power. His arrogant attitude is why our Liberal Party federally has so little support in Western Canada."

And remember what former Quebec revenue minister Eric Kierans said of Walter Gordon?

"The financial capitals of the world have had just about enough of him. The initial reaction to him of bewilderment and dismay has turned to scorn and anger."

And so back from the edge of the political grave has come Walter Gordon, author of some of the most extraordinary budgets in Canadian history, author, too, of such bad election advice to the prime minister that he could only resign, and author, finally, of such a swinging creed of isolationism as to frighten both the national and international investment community.

Back from banishment and 10 feet tall—taller, in fact, than Mitchell Sharp, now junior to his senior in both precedence and power on the special cabinet task force.

Is Mitchell now as Sharp as to be even believable as finance minister?

And remember what former

The Marines Have Landed

But U.S. Press Party First on Beachhead

By GAVIN YOUNG from Saigon

IT still seems likely, after 15 hectic months of major American involvement in Vietnam, that a solution to the war will be thrust out behind the scenes among the South Vietnamese themselves.

Nothing one can see on the spot can lead to any other conclusion. Neither side came nearer to "winning" in 1966, and both are caught in a fearful spiral of casualties, bad conscience and sinking morale.

It is becoming more and more obvious that the Viet Cong's best chance of ultimate success is through political compromise that will get the Americans out.

On the other side of the fence, there is scheduled to be a new election this year for a legislative assembly in Saigon that will very probably include very prominent deputation who might start talking openly of peace possibilities. There is some chance of a breakthrough in all this.

Unfortunately, the possibility of a successful outcome of preliminary talks seems dimmed today by evidence of a high degree of heart-warming self-deception now being practised on both sides of the battle line.

On the American side, it is channelled back home through endless visiting by influential publicists and senators. The American belief in exclusive "rightness" will inhibit give-and-take in any peace parley.

One recent prestigious example of bullheadedness has been the Nobel Prize-winning writer, John Steinbeck, in Saigon for some weeks now. Some of the columns he writes for home consumption have been reprinted in Saigon newspapers and have been so jingoistic in tone that experienced American journalists here have winced.

For Steinbeck, apparently, the war is a contest between unmitigated inhuman people (the Viet Cong) and people who are simple, decent chaps (the American army).

The reports from Hanoi of Harrison Salisbury, of the New York Times, have started a wave of denigratory remarks designed to discredit him and everything he has written about the shortcomings of American bombing that no one wants to believe.

On the local military level, American operations—such as the first landing of marines in the Mekong Delta recently—are still being blown up to preposterously triumphal proportions. The landing was in fact a fiasco worthy of that classic satire on wartime folly, "Catch 22."

The landing had been described as "potentially the most significant operation of the war." Yet, through some organizational error, the press party accompanying the marines' amphibious task force arrived on the invasion beach before the first marines.

Luckily the Viet Cong were not there. Nor did the marines in the week-long operation ever find them.

The same problem of self-deception bedevils the Viet Cong, too.

If, for example, the Viet Cong high command really believes a recent communiqué of its own outlook for peace is genuine, the communiqué speaks of "100,000 American troops killed or captured in 1966." It maintains that U.S. troops are increasingly refusing to fight, are calling openly for a halt to the "war of aggression," and are even organizing anti-war movements in the ranks.

In the wider context, it is hard to find anyone who sees the danger. For example, that an ever-widening American physical presence may alienate essentially friendly Asians. For some observers the brutal clash of culture and temperament between Thais, Vietnamese and Americans is actually desirable—in time the more fragile Vietnamese culture will become healthily imbued with American attitudes and manners.

Admiral Condemns Unification: 'Foolhardy Defence Venture'

UNIFICATION of Canada's armed forces is a "foolhardy venture," warns Rear-Admiral W. M. Landymore, compulsively retired as Maritime Commander Atlantic last July 15, and, he adds:

"Not only will Canada fail to meet its NATO and Canada-U.S. agreements but also our defence will be woefully inadequate" as a result of the demoralization of the services arising from their loss of identity and general dissatisfaction.

These "grave judgments" are included in a brief Admiral Landymore prepared for presentation to the parliamentary defence committee "to ensure that the defence of Canada, to which my entire adult life has been devoted, is not placed in jeopardy by adopting too hastily and without sufficient study, a theory which may be, however well-intended, a military disaster."

Because opportunity was denied him of making his presentation to the committee prior to second reading of the armed forces unification bill, and because he feels that certain facts and opinions should be before the committee before the House of Commons debated the measure, he has circulated the brief to members of Parliament in the hope it will help to clarify the situation and his own part in the debate—a part, incidentally, in which he risked and ultimately sacrificed his career.

Admiral Landymore recalls the visit to his command (then Esquimaux) by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer in April, 1964, when the minister explained the new policy, saying that he intended "to press on with integration" but that "the matter of unification there was an intention to force it down anyone's throat."

"I had personal reservations about the unification concept," writes Admiral Landymore, "but his statement that it would be allowed to evolve naturally... put my fears to rest; for it seemed to me that if good common sense was to prevail, the proper, logical, and sensible approach would be to carry out unification without it occurring in my lifetime."

Then, in November, came the first clash between civilian and military opinion, and Admiral Jeffrey V. Brock, chief of the Atlantic command, was summarily relieved because he differed with the minister on the integration formula.

"I must emphasize," the admiral goes on, "that the meeting with the prime minister was informal... I had no reason to expect the prime minister would take any specific action as a result of our conversations. I felt I could not live with my conscience if I did not take every step possible to make known the seriousness of the situation."

Admiral Landymore goes into the whole, and story, then, of the allegations that he disclosed the minister's decision to retire him, whereas, in fact, he had made no mention of the matter until it had appeared in the press and Halifax papers pressed him for confirmation and answers to their questions.

"The minister has stated my actions were 'repellent,' that it was a matter of military discipline and control. There is a vast difference between alerting the nation to a pending disaster in defence matters and taking civil control. This is a vast difference in advising to what degree a policy should be carried out and taking civil control. The charge was unfair and unreasonable. It was designed to discredit me personally... I was threatened by the minister's spokesman with court-martial. I wonder if this wasn't a warning to others who might be tempted to speak out."

The admiral goes on to explain why he thinks full unification and all that it implies is "a foolhardy experiment."

While he supports integration in principle, and administrative unification, he explains his main pointed to succeed him and, on his way to take up his post was summoned to one of those rare things, a commanders' conference in Ottawa. At this meeting, Mr. Hellyer told the command, they were to "go along" with his plans for unification or, as he put it, "put their letters on his desk."

"At this time," the admiral writes, "I told the minister that unification would destroy the spirit of the navy and that, unless he would provide the details of the unification program and the time span over which it was to be achieved, I could not support the policy."

"The announcement by the minister in June 1965 that the services would have a single walking-out dress and a common rank structure... caused a most serious setback in morale. Officers and men were deeply distressed by it," the admiral recalls. And as a result he wrote to the Chief of the Defence Staff, his immediate superior:

"I cannot over-emphasize the adverse result which will occur if the present course towards unification is continued... The choice seems either to live with a service which will have no heart for its work for years to come or to pursue integration with all its benefits leaving the matter of identity totally intact. I most strongly urge the second alternative."

He got no reply.

At this time Admiral Landymore was approached repeatedly for reassurances as to the navy's future from all ranks and ranks, and "I was concerned that the navy would lose key officers... who had years of training and experience in the realm of maritime warfare."

On April 14, 1966, there occurred an incident which indicated to him an attitude of hostility within the department of national defence towards the officers of the RCN.

Admiral Landymore recalls a newspaper release which quoted a defence department spokesman:

"Another factor (relating to morale) is the generally acknowledged difference in officer-main relationships in the navy. Defence officials say that naval officers still retain to some extent an above-decks-below-decks mentality where personnel are concerned. They've got to realize that this is now a highly technical service, a spokesman said. Sailors don't just scrub decks and set sail now, they're skilled men and the old attitude of officers just won't fit. We're trying to change that."

"The spokesman," says Admiral Landymore, "was Mr. Lee... Mr. William Lee, a special assistant to the minister."

"We had reached a stage where an influential person on the minister's personal staff had publicly criticized the whole officer corps of the navy... I asked for a public apology or denial. I got neither and so had to protect the minister by telling all my commanding officers... he had no such views—this to prevent a complete breakdown of confidence between naval officers and the government (department)."

"While this matter is not related to unification it illustrates that the minister has no regard whatsoever for the state of morale in the navy."

Admiral Landymore explains at length the much-debated matter of the defence minister's ownership of an earlier brief he had prepared for presentation to the parliamentary defence committee. And he discloses his subsequent meetings with the minister which, on July 12 last, brought the demand for his resignation. He refused to resign, maintaining resignation could not be justified over a "difference of opinion on unification policy," and one which, moreover, had not been ratified by Parliament.

"The minister then told me I would be retired."

The next day Admiral Landymore saw the prime minister.

"The prime minister told me that he fully supported the (defence) minister's policy on integration but that he didn't know to what depth he intended to carry unification. He reminded me he had visited the ship's company of HMCS Saskatchewan on the West coast and had promised them the government would not interfere with naval traditions."

Broadest of Studies Urged

difference with the minister are in the realm of identities—tradition, dress, rank structure and service designations.

"I believe it is necessary to have a navy, identifiable as such, as army or mobile force identified as an army... There is a distinct and separate role for the navy—a highly specialized and professional one that is, distinct and separate from the mobile force and police force concept... The chiefs of staff in Britain, in the United States, in all of NATO to my certain knowledge, share my concern over the situation at sea, and have no doubts whatsoever as to the distinctly separate role of navies in respect of it."

The threat of unification, he says, and the prospect of a hybrid force, have already caused an exodus of officers and men from the services which even pay adjustments and inducements will not halt.

Unification, he charges, requires the destruction of the navy's identity according to Mr. Hellyer.

But the destructive effect does not end there. Men may be compelled, he says, to serve in the unified force since they have sworn allegiance as members of the armed services. This, in effect, is a form of conscription and that is what the services will call it. If, on the other hand, they are free to quit their units without loss of pension "I predict such an exodus from the armed forces will occur that there won't be a chance of recovering during your lifetime and beyond," he warns the committee.

"... The public has been duped into believing unification is the end and all he all integration. I predict it will be the end of the effective defence of Canada and I don't envy you your task of explaining your mistake if you support it," the brief adds.

Then he makes recommendations "to call a halt to the folly."

First, the committee should demand a delay in the program, pending a thorough and inquiry, seeking advice from serving and retired personnel and a sort of services' opinion poll.

"It may be argued that polls or referendums are no way to run the armed forces. I submit," the admiral writes, "that it is quite proper under the circumstances where each individual's career is affected to consult the individual."

The brief urges the honorable release of all serving personnel who request it if they are required to serve in something other than the military arm of their choice.

"Whatever may be your opinion of the merits, otherwise, of unification," the admiral warns, "believe me when I say our greatest resource is shrinking in numbers to the point where the operational effectiveness of our services will be impaired for years to come and that this shrinkage is largely due to misplaced enthusiasm for the untimely experiment of unification."

At more and more such knowledge becomes public there are growing signs of apprehension in the professional and scientific world that some elements in the Pentagon may eventually be tempted to use Vietnam as a human laboratory for CWS experiments. Official military opinion seems already to have changed dramatically since the days when President Roosevelt could announce the employment of poison gas: "I state categorically that we shall under no circumstances resort to the use of such weapons unless they are first used by our enemies."

U.S. Pursues Secret Studies

By ANTHONY HOWARD from Washington

Forty miles northwest of Washington, the U.S. government has fenced in 1,300 acres of land on which it has built a $80 million building complex. Officially, the entire establishment, known as Fort Detrick, is a microbiological research centre. In fact it is the main testing ground for the future possibilities of chemical and bacteriological warfare.

In the past few days a good deal of information has come to light about the amount of effort and energy that the Pentagon is now pouring into germ warfare research. The academic weekly, Science, charged in a recent issue that thousands of people are now engaged in factories, universities and government research centres producing and researching "weapons" for an entirely new form of war.

The same periodical—the official journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science—also accuses have been making a particular study of the effects of crop destruction of under-developed countries, and that defoliants are sometimes tested in the university's laboratories. It is conceded also that army field reports from Vietnam somehow find their way to the university's professor who is directing the research.

Ancients to Save Modern Ceylon

By K. G. NAVARATNE from Colombo

Ceylon is looking to the ancient past for a solution to one of its biggest problems: production of enough rice locally to feed all the 12,000,000 people.

The problem has assumed particular urgency now because of an acute foreign exchange crisis.

The Dudley Senanayake government already has had to curtail rice imports and slash by half the weekly ration to four pounds a person. If the exchange situation worsens, the government will have to adopt more austere measures, including further reduction of rice imports.

That Ceylon can attain self-sufficiency in the staple food is no longer in doubt. Experts agree that the present acreage of 1,138,000 could be made to yield 1,000,000 tons of rice — which is double the present output and almost equivalent to total annual consumption — by cultivating in two seasons, use of better seed and wider application of fertilizer.

The main obstacle to the fullest use of the paddy land resources is lack of water. Large tracts remain uncultivated during one or both seasons because water supplies are inadequate. The position would be different if all the ancient irrigation works were in good repair. So the government has launched a crash program to restore as many of them as possible in the shortest possible time.

Altogether, there are estimated to be nearly 10,000 irrigation tanks or reservoirs, from the small village tanks to giants 20 or 30 miles in perimeter, all interconnected by an elaborate system of canals.

Until about the 14th century, most of these irrigation works had been in such good condition that Ceylon was at times able to actually export rice. Today hardly a fifth of these are in service.

BACK

The oldest tank still in use of which there is any historical information is the 235-acre Basirak in the ancient capital of Anuradhapura. According to the "Mahavamsa" and other chronicles, it was built around 300 BC.

The most famous of the existing tanks is the Minneri, a man-made lake covering 6,300 acres when full and measuring 20 miles in circumference.

Constructed by the great tank-builder King Mahasen in the 4th century, it is situated in lush paddy country in north central Ceylon. In the same region is the "Sea of Parakrama," only slightly smaller than the Minneri.

Of the feeder channels, the most remarkable is the Elahera, which taps water from the Amban River at Matale, central Ceylon, and makes a liquid ribbon trail over sun-scorched plains and replenishes Minneri, 29 miles from the source.

From the spill of Minneri, the canal continues northward and eastward, giving the benefit of its bounty to several other tanks, and ending up in the sea near Trincomalee, 85 miles from its intake.

The gradient of the canal for long stretches falls only six inches per mile.

Engineers have marvelled at the feats of the ancients which suffer little in comparison with recent works carried out in Asia with the aid of science and technology.

The government, by its decision to restore the tanks and canals, has paid the greatest tribute possible to the ancient engineers.

Enormous Grain Demands Compel Re-Thinking

Canadian Farm Changes Coming

By PETER THOMSON

Canadian agriculture in the opinion of a growing number of farm leaders and economists is on the threshold of some fundamental changes.

First, many observers believe Canada could be entering an era of strong demand and higher prices for agricultural commodities.

Second, some economists and government officials foresee a lowering of international trade barriers — a development that would cause a realignment of production patterns in Canada.

Third, farm leaders and economists look for a basic change in the government's method of supporting agriculture.

Increased demand and higher prices are seen as a reflection of the world food production population ratio. Food output per person has been declining for several years. The need for agricultural commodities trade is rapidly intensifying.

Hand in hand with this development is an increasing desire on the part of developed, surplus-producing nations to feed the hungry millions — for humanitarian or for political reasons.

As evidence, one can point to U.S. shipment of an estimated 9,000,000 tons of grain to India in the current crop year. In 1955, shipments totalled 5,000,000 tons, and before that generally ran at 2,000,000 to 3,000,000.

Canada this year is increasing food aid shipments to 900,000 tons. Australia to 150,000. The USSR recently announced a gift of 200,000 tons of grain to India. All represent a sharp increase over previous shipments.

It is now recognized that all of North America's potential food production could soon be utilized to feed the rapidly expanding populations of the hungry nations.

New demand could also arise from the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Canadian officials are now negotiating for commodities agreements that could bring new markets for commodities produced most efficiently in Canada.

Wheat and other grains fall into that category. Sharply increased demand for Canadian farm goods, either as a result of stepped up food aid or through lower tariffs, could radically change some of the trends that have dominated the agriculture industry in Canada for the past 20 years.

Most significant of those trends has been a reduction in farm population and a subsequent increase in average farm size, accompanied by sharply increased equipment inputs and sensational technological advances.

Increased production, combined with the traditional elasticity of demand for agricultural products, gave rise to large surpluses in the late 1950s.

Although North America's surpluses are now gone, and commodity prices have been somewhat higher in the past two years, the income gap between agricultural and non-agricultural sectors of the economy has continued to widen.

The federal and some provincial governments have taken steps to reduce the spread. Generally they have done so by supporting prices in the market place or by encouraging formation of marketing boards to strengthen the farmers' bargaining position.

Both of these steps lead to higher consumer prices with accompanying inflationary tendencies — and policies that raise consumer prices are being seriously questioned in view of consumer protests.

This, some economists say, may lead to less-inflationary cash payments or capital grants to farmers, to help narrow the income gap.

Merging of farms is expected to continue but there is growing concern the trend will go too far. The huge farm may produce at the lowest cost per unit.

With food demand rising rapidly, maximum output may soon be deemed more desirable than "lowest cost" production.

This new view, with all the policy alterations that go with it, may be waiting in the wings of Canada's agricultural stage.

U.K., South Africa Make Naval Pact

AP, From Cape Town

South Africa is to take on greater responsibility for defence of the sea route around the Cape of Good Hope in the event of war, under an agreement recently reached between British and South African representatives here.

The plan is subject to acceptance by the British and South African governments. Recent British-South African discussions resulted from Britain's bid to cut her expenses in maintaining Simonstown naval base near Cape Town.

The representatives of the two countries agreed that the Royal Navy should continue to be represented at Simonstown by an officer of appropriate rank to maintain effective liaison with the South African Navy.

Fears of Germany Color Polish View

By PHIL NEWSOM

Polish foreign minister Adam Rapacki, like most Poles, has a deep distrust of those he calls the German militarists.

At the same time he will say he sees a difference between the militarists and the German people.

"We are neighbors of Germany," he once told me, "and we have suffered proportionately more than all others from the Germans. In the Second World War we lost 22 per cent of our population. Our problems with the German militarists are historic."

It is a part of the split personality currently developing in eastern Europe toward the West Germans.

As they have achieved a measure of freedom from the dictates of Russia, eastern bloc countries have turned increasingly toward the West to improve their own economic conditions. And no country has moved so energetically to take advantage of the new situation as West Germany, whose businessmen flood all the countries of eastern Europe.

Poland herself has not escaped it. Krupp, the hated armaments manufacturer, does extensive business in Poland.

Business is business even though each day the communist press attacks the German "revanchists."

One day the border question will be solved. Even the Germans have no real hope of regaining their lost lands. But the Poles retain their fears.

The Poles lost Vilna and Lvov (Rapacki's birthplace) to the Russians. They have no intention of giving Gdanak, the former free city of Danzig, or Gdynia to the Germans.

coming establishment of diplomatic relations with Romania.

Hungary, and possibly Bulgaria, may establish similar relations with West Germany soon.

A major facet of Rapacki's foreign policy has been that diplomatic relations with West Germany are impossible until the Germans recognize the Oder-Neisse line as permanent.

Now Poland sees her closest friends betraying her.

'Bridges' Make Ulbricht Nervous

By HURBERT J. ERS

From Berlin

West Germany is intent on building bridges to Communist East Europe and the German Communists do not like it.

Recent statements make it clear that the East German regime in East Berlin headed by Walter Ulbricht is becoming increasingly nervous.

The matter could develop into a major crisis for Ulbricht if the West German initiative leaves East Germany in increasing isolation within its own bloc.

East Germany is recognized as a state only by Communist countries. The East Germans want fellow Communist regimes to insist that West Germany recognize the existence of two German states as the price for any East-West coming together.

Romania established relations this week with West Germany. The West Germans also have been talking to Hungary about diplomatic relations and, less optimistically for the immediate future, with Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria. A series of East German statements included one from the foreign ministry that declared: "Peaceful co-existence by no means requires the respecting of the revengeful standpoint of the West

Vast Salt Project Set

CNS, from Perth

An American company is enclosing about 40 square miles of tidal flats in the north of Western Australia so that salt can be shipped to Japan.

The Leslie Salt Co., one of the biggest salt producers in the world, eventually hopes to be producing 2,000,000 tons of salt each year. It has an agreement with the state government to spend more than $7,000,000 in establishing a solar salt plant.

Embankments will enclose an evaporating lake covering 40 square miles of tidal flats near the coast. The lake will be subdivided into ponds through which seawater will pass until it becomes a thick brine solution.

This will then be pumped through an 18-mile canal to another evaporating pond on an 18-acre site not far from a port. The salt will be harvested from this last pond and stockpiled for shipment.

In 1969 the company hopes to export 475,000 tons to Japan. Production will then be increased up to about 2,000,000 tons a year.

At present Japan uses about 3,700,000 tons of salt a year. About 30 per cent of it comes from Mexico and 20 per cent from China.

Another American organization, Kaiser Industries, has a 40 per cent share in an Australian company which also is planning a solar salt plant.

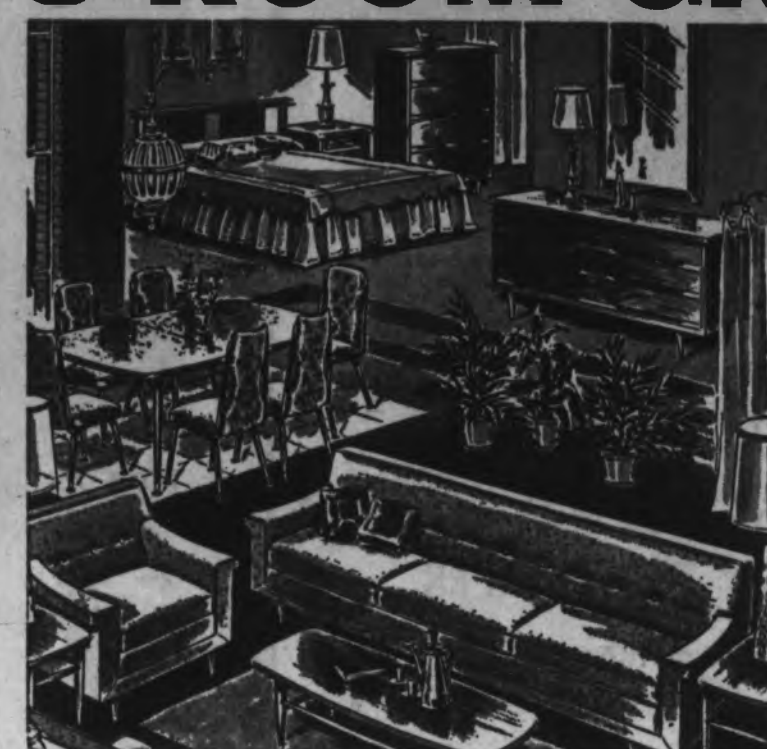

It will produce up to 300,000 tons a year by 1970 and may extend this to 1,500,000 tons a year — against mainly for Japan.

The main conditions needed for the commercial production of solar salt are a high annual evaporation rate combined with a low average rainfall.

Outer Whale Apes Moby Joe's Blow

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Moby Joe's benefactors "thought they were going to get swallowed by the whale" during an early Thursday feeding period.

Farley Mowat, Canadian author-naturalist and Keeper of the Whale, said the 80-ton creature "scared the hell out of the boys in the dory" as they were dumping live herring into the pond where the whale has been trapped almost two weeks.

"He went completely wild. They couldn't see him but he was tearing around the pond. All they could hear was the snorting and blowing."

Then, another whale surfaced near the mouth of a cove leading into the natural enclosure and began imitating Moby Joe's movements.

BEGAN IMITATING

"The second whale was surfacing and blowing in exactly the same synchronization as Moby Joe. The boys had a whale on either side of them and they were kind of nervous. They thought the whales might open their dory."

Because of the identical timing of the movements of the two whales, the fishermen "felt the two were definitely having some kind of understanding."

He added that the presence of the second whale was "tremendously helpful" in driving the herring into the mouth of Aldridge's Pond, where Moby Joe eagerly anticipated his first substantial meal in 12 days.

"It was probably just a coincidence that the second whale was so helpful in this—but it's a strange coincidence," Mr. Mowat said.

"What we really need is the Harmon II," Mr. Mowat said in reference to a request for a government-owned seiner to catch fish for Moby Joe. "With the Harmon II, we could bring more herring in there than he could eat and thus build up a supply right in the pond."

KEEPER OF WHALE

Premier Smallwood has put the whale under government protection and allotted $2,000 to feed and care for it. The next day, he appointed Mr. Mowat, who lives a mile from Aldridge's Pond, Keeper of the Whale.

The tale of the whale started when it sped towards shore near Burgeo in pursuit of a school of herring and swam over a submerged ledge into the pond. The whale has refused to approach the ledge again and experts say this is due to a whale's instinctive fear of shallow water.

The pond is only about 300 yards wide and 500 yards long, with a maximum depth of about 60 feet.

Vancouver Police Kettle A-Boil

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell and the three appointed members of the Vancouver Police Commission are at odds again this time over police force morale.

Mayor Campbell said Wednesday he wanted an investigation of the police force to determine the cause of low morale. But Thursday, the commissioners hit back saying the suggestion of low morale "is quite contrary to our understanding of the situation."

The commissioners accused Mayor Campbell of not being fully informed when issuing public statements "that cannot help but be detrimental to the force."

Commissioner David R. Blair, speaking on behalf of the commissioners, said:

"Morale is a matter of vital importance and any request for an inquiry into the state of morale, which the chairman (Campbell) requests, will be carefully considered and appropriate action taken."

Queen May Present First War Medals

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans Minister Tetlow promised Thursday to consider asking Queen Elizabeth or Prince Philip to decorate First World War veterans whose medals were never properly awarded.

Jack McIntosh (PC, Swift Current-Macleod Creek) suggested appropriate ceremonies could be held during the Queen's visit to Canada June 28-July 3.

Mr. Tetlow also promised to think about sending all surviving Canadian veterans of the battle of Vimy Ridge to a 50th anniversary service in France this summer.

Four Surviving Quints Given Good Chance

NEW YORK (AP) — The overjoyed mother of four surviving quintuplets Thursday recommended lots of babies for all women, but only "if they love them very much."

"I wanted a baby so badly and now I'm very happy," said Hildarene Harris, a 31-year-old mother of the boy and three girls born Wednesday night in hospital. The fifth baby, a girl, was stillborn. Mrs. Harris used fertility pills to help her become pregnant.

The full-term infants were given a good chance to survive. Doctors said they had no breathing difficulties and their outlook would be good if they got past the 40-hour mark.

Not needing oxygen, the four babies were in plastic-covered bassinets which maintain temperature and humidity.

The first and largest baby was the boy, Lionel, who weighed four pounds, one-half ounce. The first girl weighed three pounds, 9½ ounces, the second, three pounds, one ounce, and the third girl was the smallest—two pounds 10 ounces.

The girls were named Lianis, Louisa and Talitha.

The father, Lionel, 31, a 3106-

a-week postal clerk, passed out cigars and described himself as she started taking the drug.

Dr. James Seley, family physician to the negro couple and the man who delivered the babies, said Mrs. Harris had been trying for two years to have a baby.

Several attempts at drug treatment failed, he said, and the drug that succeeded was clomiphene citrate. He said Mrs. Harris conceived the quintuplets four or five months after she started taking the drug.

Indian Jet Downs Pakistani

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — An Indian air force jet downed a Pakistani plane Thursday in Indian air space. Pakistan said the plane was a civilian aircraft from a flying club.

An Indian defense spokesman said the Pakistani plane was a reconnaissance aircraft. It was shot down 18 miles inside India near a Punjab town, 217 miles northwest of Delhi.

A Pakistani high commission spokesman said the plane was civilian and the pilot, Yusuf Malik, is presumed dead.

"Our government," he added, "is taking a very serious view of the matter."

It was the first major incident between India and Pakistan since the Tashkent Declaration a year ago brought them together after a three-week conflict in Kashmir in September, 1965.

Hanging First In Years

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Ronald Ryan, centre of a stormy Australian controversy over the abolition of capital punishment, was hanged this morning for the murder of a prison guard.

Ryan, described by his lawyer as an enemy of society, was hanged after thousands demonstrated at the gates of Pentridge prison.

The 41-year-old burglar was convicted of killing guard George Hodgson during a jail-break in December, 1965.

He was hanged after a 48-hour stay of execution earlier this week and despite the wave of protests from capital punishment opponents.

Police made scores of arrests Thursday night among the crowd of chanting, booing demonstrators opposing the first hanging in Victoria state for 16 years.

Lost Amendment Closes Debate

The NDP opposition wound up the throne speech debate Thursday as it began its — with an amendment that was defeated.

The NDP opened the session in New Westminster with an amendment to have a Hansard in the legislature, and brought forward three non-confidence motions which were defeated in later debates.

Thursday's amendment, to have a daily 15-minute question period, was ruled out of order.

SUPPLY COMMITTEE

Following acceptance of the throne speech by a 32-22 vote, Premier Bennett moved that at the next sitting the House should resolve itself into a supply committee, "and that this order will have preference over all other business except introduction of bills."

The amendment, moved by Opposition leader Robert Strachan, would have added "and a daily 15-minute oral question period."

"In any other assemblies and parliaments it is part and parcel of the democratic process to have a question time," said Mr. Strachan.

"This is not an amendment, it is a straight vote of non-confidence," said Premier Bennett.

Gordon Dowling, (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) who seconded the amendment, said

The attorney-general in 14 years, has never appeared in court as they do in the British Parliament to defend or do anything for the government."

Speaker William Murray interrupted to rule the amendment and all discussion out of order.

NO DEBATE ALLOWED

"The motion before the House is to resolve itself into committee of supply, and the laws of Great Britain show that no debate is allowed on this motion."

The Speaker asked for more time to form a ruling, saying that the opportunity to put this motion for a question time should not be lost.

Mr. Strachan said he did not want the motion to be considered at some date decided upon by the premier. "We went through this with our bill to have a Hansard."

He challenged the Speaker's ruling, but it was upheld in a division, by a 31-21 vote.

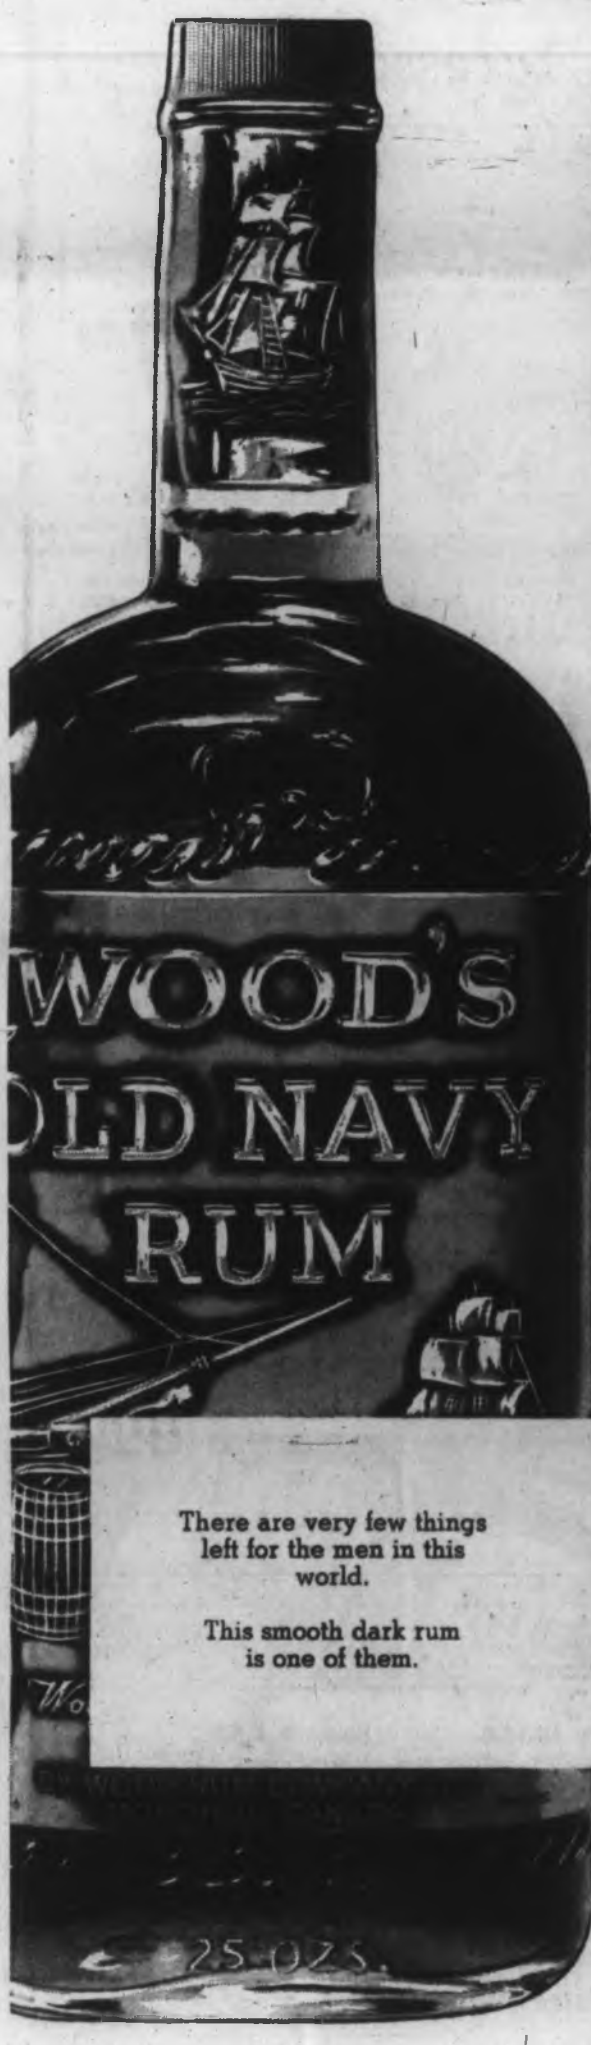

Mr. Bennett's original motion then received unanimous approval.

Now Victoria Is Home

Graduation Led Beverlie To Wax World of Song

By PATRICK O'NEILL

When Beverlie Robertson graduated from university she stepped right onto a higher rung on the entertainment success ladder.

"Two friends of mine were doing very well, singing in a good dining room. They asked me to join them, and within week we were singing as a trio for good pay. "We never went through the traditional tough breaks," she said.

The three were called the Chantrelles, two men and a girl. They drew rave reviews in eastern Canada, and soon after formation a record company put out an album by the three.

"We were thrilled at the time, but it probably wasn't such a good idea," she said. The group was unhappy with the songs chosen and the recording company's techniques.

Then one day it ended. "Our leader's wife decided she had enough of not seeing her husband."

Since then, Beverlie has gone her own way, polishing her folk singing and guitar playing in various Canadian clubs.

Tonight and tomorrow night, she and her husband Charlie Robertson will be featured at the Music Hall, Government and Pandora.

Charlie specializes in the folk blues, in singing, harmonica and guitar playing. The young couple sang at Banff before coming to Vancouver and later to Victoria several months ago.

They now make their home in Victoria.

Yarrows Wins Ferry Refit

A six-week, $140,000 contract for the annual refit of the B.C. government ferry Queen of Prince Rupert has been awarded to Yarrows Ltd.

The flagship of the fleet is due in Esquimalt drydock Monday after completing her return trip between Prince Rupert and Kelsey Bay. The yard will probably reinforce engine mountings to remove vibrations that have developed since the ship was launched in October of 1965.

The company also was low bidder on a 10-day refit bid on the C.P.R.'s Princess of Vancouver.

Likely This Summer

Customs Change Slashes Baggage Checks

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Soon, likely this summer, coming off the jet from almost anywhere around the world, you'll be able to breeze through Canadian customs with no baggage inspection.

Or, to be meticulously accurate, almost no baggage inspection.

Preparing for the day soon to dawn when the new, larger 500-passenger jets will be swamping the airports—some of which already are at peak traffic capacity at the busiest multi-flight hours—the national revenue department is streamlining its customs procedures.

Rehearsals, as the department is calling them, of the new baggage-inspection drill are already in progress.

And this, says deputy revenue minister Raymond LaBarge, in charge of the department's customs and excise division, is how it will work.

There will be a quick verbal preliminary screening of arrivals on in-flights.

Only those whose responses to a few quick but quite casual questions are unsatisfactory, will be asked, down the line, to open their baggage for inspection.

Incoming passengers will be asked only a few simple questions at the gates by customs inspectors—questions such as where have you been, for how long, on business or holidays?

There, inspectors already get to the baggage area.

Actions or Answers

The easy verbal interrogation will come before the passengers aware of whose answers have been satisfactory, and those whose have not, will have almost everybody on through without baggage inspection.

Only those whose answers, appearance, deportment and just possibly some other aspects have raised some doubts in customs officers' minds will be requested to "open up please."

Everybody else will be on their way, time saved, tempers unruffled, spared the inconvenience and annoyance of having strangers paw through their personal effects.

As insurance, says Mr. LaBarge, the department will continue its practice of "spot checks"—the stopping for inspection of one out of every 20 or 30 or 100 travellers.

What the "rhythm" of the spot check is he isn't saying. It could vary, he hints, which would be a further persuader to keep everybody honest.

New Wintry Blast Hits New England

By UPI

A Groundhog Day snowstorm swept eastward across New England and upstate New York Thursday, causing at least four deaths. Record high temperatures were recorded just south of the storm.

The wintry blast, accompanied by an intense electric storm over Boston, was the third in a week in some of the stricken areas. It was part of the same storm system that left the Middle West buried in snow.

Four to six inches of slushy snow was on the ground in parts of New York state, where two persons suffered fatal heart attacks while shoveling snow and two others died in snow-attributed traffic accidents.

An American Airlines plane with 46 persons aboard slipped off a storm-slickened runway on landing at the Rochester (N.Y.) airport but no one was hurt and the plane was not damaged.

Heavy snow warnings were up in New Hampshire and parts of Maine. Parts of New Hampshire got five inches of snow in one six-hour period, and eight inches were expected to fall on Maine before the storm moved out to sea. Hazardous driving warnings were posted throughout New England.

WARM SPELL OUT

The weather bureau said the snow system was pulling Arctic air into the northeast from the west and south, ending a recent warm spell in the area and spawning new rainstorms on its perimeter. Zero readings were forecast for the northern New England.

Record highs for the date were recorded in New York City, 58, and Richmond, Va., and Washington, D.C., both 72.

Pedder Bay Dredging Approved

Dredging of Pedder Bay to provide enough water for all tide launching and boat mooring will be completed in time for this summer's salmon fishing peak, Victoria MP David Groos said yesterday.

He said the federal government had approved the job and that tenders would be called in March.

Pedder Bay Marina was purchased by Oak Bay Marina last year and is now being operated as a part of that marina complex.

Marina operator Bob Wright has expansion plans for Pedder Bay following completion of the dredging.

Family Fuss Conquers East German Rules

BERLIN (UPI) The East Germans in a rare display of understanding Thursday released a West Berlin woman abducted into East Berlin Monday night because of a lovers' quarrel.

West Berlin Mayor Heinrich Albertz said the U.S. mission here interceded with the Russians to gain her release.

The release also was negotiated by two lawyers, one from West Berlin and one from East Berlin, who in the past arranged similar actions.

The woman, Ingrid Samman, 26-year-old department store salesgirl, drove into West Berlin through the Sandkrug Bridge crossing point in the automobile of East Berlin lawyer Wolfgang Vogel.

It was a quieter ride than the one she had Monday night into East Berlin in a rented automobile that sped past the U.S. Army's checkpoint Charlie. Her husband, Nader Samman, a 24-year-old Syrian, abducted her into East Berlin because she planned to get a divorce, western police said.

Police reported Samman smuggled his wife out of East Germany in August 1965 and in a quarrel threatened "if you try to divorce me I'll take you back where I found you."

Police said he carried out

How Much Do They Learn?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Confederation train left Vancouver Wednesday after playing host to about 93,000 persons during its 12-day stopover.

Since the train opened its doors in Victoria in early January about 180,000 people have toured the six-car panorama of Canadian history.

Officials are alarmed at the rate at which people are touring the train.

Before the train opened in Victoria it was estimated that about 6,500 people would be able to tour the train a day. Tuesday, more than 10,000 took the trip.

Spokesman Paul Taylor said: "We are delighted at the number of people going through the train, but we are wondering just how much they are learning about Canadians."

The train will stop in Chilliwack, Kamloops, Kelowna, Castlegar, Cranbrook, Prince Rupert and Prince George before going into Alberta on its cross-Canada tour.

Naturalist Will Lecture

Dr. Charles Stine, a U.S. naturalist, will lecture and show a film next week on the plant and animal life of Delmarva Peninsula, a huge shoal including parts of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

It will be the fourth in this season's series of Audubon lectures and will be at Oak Bay Junior high at 8 p.m., Feb. 10 and 11.

Since 1847

A modern company 120 years old completely owned by its family of policyholders

In the past 120 years Canada Life has paid out $290 million more in benefits than it received in premiums.

Canada Life has lived up to all its guarantees ever since it was established in 1847. Since then, it has paid policyholders and beneficiaries, or accumulated for them, $290 million more than were entrusted to the Company by policyholders.

From the end of its first year Canada Life has always declared dividends. The amount set aside in 1966 was 9% greater than last year and is the largest amount provided in its history.

New business amounted to over three-quarters of a billion dollars and business in force now exceeds seven billion dollars.

Strong City Contingent Prep For Winter Games Volleyball

By KEVAN HULL
A strong contingent of young Victoria athletes will be on the B.C. men and women's volleyball teams which play in the First Winter Games at Quebec, Feb. 17, 18 and 19.

Two girls and six boys from Victoria have been working out every Sunday for the past three months with athletes from Vancouver.

The proposition has been an expensive one for them as the girls must travel to Vancouver each weekend and the boys every other week.

Eventually they will be reimbursed but as all but one are students, there appears to be no money to pay for the trip.

Should the team have to bowl in the provincial rep. and these kids are good.

Rudy Suwara of United States national team and his coach Val Kellar were surprised and impressed with the quality of play managed by both the men and women's squads.

Kellar and Suwara rated Anne Jeffrey, a student at University of Victoria, one of the best prospects in North America.

Miss Jeffrey has developed strongly in the past two years at the university under coaches Don Smyth, president of the Canadian Volleyball Association, and Mickey Kovats.

She is a solid contender for a berth on the Canadian Pan American Games team this summer.

Another university star catching the American's eyes was 19-year-old John Phillips. An extremely hard worker, Phillips is the best offensive threat on the team.

Wendy Asanuma, an all-around athlete from Oak Bay High School, is the other Victorian on the provincial club. Smyth rates her as a top prospect for the next few years.

The men's team, coached by Smyth, is made up of six players each from Victoria and UBC. Joining Phillips on the team are Bob Graves, 20, and university teammates Derek Reimer, 19, Bob Ireland, 20, Meredith Spike, 19, and Jim Vornburgh, 18.

Developed by SMYTH
All six developed under Smyth at Victoria High School.

From UBC are Mike Bell, six-foot four-inch Mike Rockwell, the team's best all-around player, Ken Witke, Kilt Fortune, Dale Chaman and Bob Boyle.

Rockwell is currently favoring a pulled arm muscle but is expected to be ready in time for the Winter Games.

His 34-inch standing jump differential is the highest on the team.

Also on the starting team with Rockwell are setters Ireland and Reimer and hitters or "spikers" Vornburgh, Phillips and Witke.

Only player unlikely to make the games trip is setter Melodie Bell who is suffering from mononucleosis.

One of the thorns in Smyth's plans for the team was the inability of Vancouver high school standout Fred MacMurray to try out for the team.

ONE OF BEST Practices are held on Sundays which conflicts with his religious beliefs. MacMurray is one of best juniors in the province and has a jump differential of 36 inches.

The other major thorn is lack of reimbursement to the players for their travel expenses. The grant has been passed, but so far Smyth hasn't been able to find out where the money is now.

At any rate, B.C. should be strong contenders in both men and women's competition at the Winter Games.

New Grid Boss Attacked But Only Berger Boiling

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Sam Berger, president of Ottawa Rough Riders, recommended Thursday that the Canadian Football League replace Senator Keith Davey of Toronto as commissioner.

He was commenting on a report by the Vancouver Sun earlier in the day that Davey stands "an excellent chance of being fired."

Berger said the CFL "should try to get somebody else who will fulfill our requirements better."

"A great many statements have been made by Senator Davey that should not have been made and a situation has developed where a change would be in the interest of the league."

Approach Wrong
"Senator Davey's whole approach to the league has not been what we would have expected when we engaged him."

Davey was named last June to replace G. Sydney Haler of Winnipeg as commissioner and assumed duties Jan. 1.

The Sun story said Davey could be voted out of office by a majority of the nine CFL clubs at the league's annual meeting Feb. 22-24 in Montreal.

But John Bassett, chairman of the board of Toronto Argonauts, said his club will support Davey in any vote.

ARGOS FOR HIM
"I don't know if the story is accurate, but if it is you can be quite sure that the Argonaut vote will be for the retention of Senator Davey as commissioner."

Ken Preston, general manager of Saskatchewan Roughriders, and Pat Mahoney, executive vice-president of Calgary Stampeders, said they believe most complaints have come from eastern teams.

Preston said the complaints might be coming from the east "because most of the problems rest in the east."

"All our clubs had a good season in the west."

STAMPS SATISFIED
Mahoney, chairman of the committee which selected Davey, said the Stampeders have no complaints.

"We haven't experienced anything in Calgary which would lead us to take the position that some of the clubs apparently have taken. We have beefs. It's possible that other clubs may have legitimate beefs."

Norm Kimball, assistant general manager of Edmonton Eskimos, said he has not heard of any dissatisfaction and has had no indication that the question of Davey's suitability will be placed on the agenda of the Montreal meeting.

"The idea is completely implausible. I have enough of my own problems without worrying about that."

Other clubs declined comment.

Wind Snarls Leaders In Bob Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)
The wind blew and the sand flew and scores mounted Thursday as Gene Littler and Don Massengale wound up in a tie for top spot in the second round of the $10,000 Bob Hope desert golf classic.

The 36-year-old Littler, whose last big victory was in the World Series of Golf last year, shot a five-under-par 67, and Massengale came in with a 70, both for 139 strokes.

There was a four-way tie at 140, while the four stars of the bulky Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and defending champion Doug Sanders suffered varying luck.

ZOOMS TO 75
Casper, who had a respectable first-round 69, followed with a disheartening 75 to equal par 144.

Nicklaus reduced his opening effort by five strokes for a 70 and was tied at 145 with 13 others.

Art Jones of Portland who has 56.

Also scoring for Vancouver were Marc Dufour with two goals while Ray Brunel, Ken Block and Larry Popen each scored once.

Jerry Toppazzani scored twice for Los Angeles and Mel Pearson, Tommy McVie and Dick Meisner got the others.

Wings Win Squeaker Sight Playoff Berth

DETROIT—Detroit Red Wings put a National Hockey League playoff spot within easy sighting distance Thursday night, edging out the last-place Boston Bruins, 4-3.

Goals only 11 seconds apart by Alex Delvecchio and Ray Cullen early in the third period did in the Bruins, who came back with a sturdy, two-goal rally which just fell short.

After a rather desultory first period, Gordie Howe opened the season.

Ron Murphy got that one back nine minutes later but Dean Prentice restored the Detroit lead with his 15th scoring shot less than two minutes later.

YOUNG PLAYMAKER
Defenceman Howie Young started both Detroit scoring plays in the third period. He fed Cullen on the first goal and Howe was in on the goal scored by Cullen.

Outplayed until then, the Bruins snapped back with defenceman Ted Green leading their belated attack.

Green brought the score to 2-4 when he scored while Young was serving a penalty, then set up a goal by Bob Dillabough with less than three minutes left.

Bruins pulled goalkeeper Ed Johnston in the last minute but failed to get another shot past Roger Crozier.

Members of the Amalgamated Conservation Society have put on full steam ahead to prepare arguments for a two-mile Juan de Fuca Strait net-free salmon reserve to present to federal Deputy Fisheries Minister A. W. H. Needler, who will meet with ACS members later this month.

With the deputy minister will be Cliff Levelton, the department's new director of conservation and protection services at Ottawa and the ACS had better have its case pretty solid when it comes to dealing with him. When he headed protection services from the Vancouver office, he was the man sports fishermen had to come to grips with for allowing so much net fishing in Juan de Fuca.

The ACS had a practice discussion Wednesday evening when provincial commercial fishing department representative Tony Karop attended the meeting along with Victoria fisheries officer Lloyd Goodwill.

ACS members were angered at a letter received from Recreation and Conservation and Commercial Fisheries Minister Kenneth Kiernan in which he presented most of the arguments the federal commercial fisheries uses to oppose a net-free salmon reserve along Juan de Fuca, but failed to accept the sports fishermen's arguments for a reserve.

They protested the dual portfolio which places the minister responsible for recreation on one hand and responsible for the sometimes conflicting interests of commercial fishing on the other.

One thing Kiernan's letter did do was to set some guide lines for ACS members to build their case.

One point in question is claims that sports fishermen are not able to come up with definite statistics to show that sports who fishing in Juan de Fuca Strait has declined, or that a net-free corridor would help troll fishermen.

The federal fisheries has no definite statistics to prove otherwise, but Mr. Kiernan seemed to put more faith in their promises and theories than those of troll fishermen who have fished the Juan de Fuca Strait for years and experienced a sudden decline in their catch as soon as the net force appeared in Juan de Fuca in force.

The ACS asks that its proposal be given a try.

What little investigation the federal fisheries department has done on the situation amounts to a study in the last two or three years to show that sports fishermen couldn't catch the coho, even if they did let them through the nets in unharmed schools by way of a two-mile net-free corridor. Their idea is that the mature fall coho are less susceptible to a hook and line fishery, but they seem to ignore the fact that before the wall of nets there was fabulous fishing.

Sports fishermen will have to muster their forces and prove how excellent the fishing used to be.

No statistical data is available, because records were never kept until the King Fisherman Contest recorded entries, and that has been mainly since the net problem started. There is nothing to show how good the fishing was before the nets.

The best way we know to prove the point is for sports fishermen, who used to have fine Juan de Fuca Strait fishing before the 1958 era when the net fleet started building, to write letters, or affidavits, telling how many coho they used to catch, how few they now catch, when the decline started, and why they think it started.

These would prove indisputable evidence to present to the federal fisheries department and could sway the whole issue for troll fishermen.

We are thinking of letters from the real highliners... Gordy Bell, Jimmy Fleet, Ira Erb, Jumbo Davies, Jim Chaplin, Andy Davidson, Albert Robinson, George Gilbert, Howard English, Roy Smith, Vern Palliser, and others.

We would be prepared to receive these letters and pass them along to the ACS, or you could send them direct to the Amalgamated Conservation Society, P.O. Box 741, Victoria.

There is just two weeks left to build a case for Juan de Fuca salmon trawlers, sports or potter. Time is of the essence and for Juan de Fuca fishermen it is a life or death battle within the next two weeks. If anyone is concerned about the decline of troll fishing in Juan de Fuca Strait, they can help now.

The ACS Wednesday night supported the Vancouver Island Council of divers in its protest over proposed regulations which would limit spearing of ling cod to one ling cod, or 25 pounds of ling cod.

Members felt the restrictions were too severe.

Steelheading is just about at its peak in all rivers and most rivers were reported in fairly high, but good condition, Thursday.

At last the chinook salmon, up to 12 pounds, have shown in Finlayson Arm. Art Midlane has hit his stride with good-sized chinook on straight large strip at the mouth of Tod Inlet, which had been spotty. Blues are plentiful in Deep Hole, McKenzie Bay, Indian Bay waters, but are often deep. Art Edwards found his limit of blues on green and white hootchie knotchie and flasher, off Willis Point Tuesday. Pedder Bay, Victoria, Oak Bay are all giving up chinooks.

Bucky Kennett reports Crofton, Tent Island, Kuper Island waters good for blues and the odd chinook.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A team establishing St. Louis' Central Hockey League franchise in Kansas City next season will come before the city council today. The agreement also calls for the city to install ice in Municipal Auditorium.

The Central Hockey League now includes Oklahoma City, Houston, Omaha, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Tulsa. All six clubs are directly owned by major league teams.

The lease was negotiated with Ed Salomon, owner of St. Louis Blues, one of six new teams which will join the National Hockey League next season.

Vancouver Ready?

Only Radar Men Know for Sure

By BOB PETHUK

Will she or won't she? Only her radar technicians know for sure and they don't seem to be telling anyone—not even district marine agent Larry Slaght.

"I can't comment on what state the radar is in because I don't know," Mr. Slaght said Thursday.

STILL TIED UP
The "she" referred to is the weather ship Vancouver, now alongside the wall in Esquimalt Harbor costing $10,000 a week to operate while radar technicians flier with the huge $1,000,000 balloon-erecting radar set housed in a bubble aft of the bridge.

The radar is the last in a long chain of setbacks that started as soon as the Vancouver was launched.

It is rumored the radar is not the proper set to do the job of tracking balloons which are not predictable. Similar sets are used for tracking satellites which are predictable.

TRUBLE
From the time the ship first started out trouble has stalked her.

She hit the water 21 minutes ahead of schedule during her launching ceremony at Burrard Dry Dock in Vancouver when a bolt snapped.

Next, because of all the extra gear carried high on the ship, it was discovered that she would be top heavy so tons of concrete were poured in the lower holds.

LIMPED HOME
Then one of her generator shafts started giving trouble so all five were stripped for a complete inspection.

On her first minor shakedown cruise an electrical circuit went out and the ship limped back into harbor early.

She ran into radar and engine trouble during her shakedown cruise to Hawaii and her flame stabilizing system broke down in heavy weather.

Now all appears to be well with the Vancouver except the radar.

She is scheduled to start her first hitch at weather station Papa March 7—providing the radar bugs can be ironed out. If they are not, no one, at the moment anyway, knows what will happen.

Two Trustees Named For Saanich Schools

The education department has appointed two trustees to fill vacancies on the Saanich school board. George Rose, 815 Sea Road, Brentwood, will represent Central Saanich on the board. He is a works foreman for Saanich municipality. George A. Howard, retired, of 16288 Resthaven Drive, will sit for Sidney.

Both men were appointed on recommendation of the other five members of the board. Two seats were left vacant last December for lack of candidates in the yearly school board election.

Sooke District

School Building Encouraged

Sooke school district has been told to go ahead with plans for classroom construction that will ease the worst of its crowding next fall.

John Bartanus, chairman of the Sooke School Board, announced Thursday that senior officials of the department of education have approved the drawing of sketch plans for construction totalling 12 rooms.

Trustees of the district, like many others in B.C., have been concerned by the government's freeze on school construction this winter.

SKETCH PLANS
Mr. Bartanus said he and other school district officials conferred this week with Dr. Neil Perry, deputy minister of education, and J. F. Phillips, assistant superintendent in charge of administration and school board relations. "Firm commitment couldn't be made, but we were given permission to go ahead with sketch plans," Mr. Bartanus reported.

He listed the planned construction: a two-room school for retarded children adjacent to Langford elementary; a two-room addition at Colwood elementary; a two-room addition at Savory elementary, which was opened only 18 months ago; a two-room addition to Sangster elementary; a one-room addition at Sooke elementary; and three more rooms at Glen Lake elementary.

"WE HOPE"
The construction, if finally approved, will probably cost about $300,000.

"Others are needed, but this is the least we can do without going on shifts next September," said Mr. Bartanus.

"I hope this will tide us over."

Record Budget

Saanich school board has brought in a record draft budget of $2,122,743 for the coming year.

Increasing teacher and staff salaries, higher operating expenses and additional special services have pushed the budget over the $2,000,000 mark for the first time, school board vice-chairman John Keen said Thursday.

The 1966 budget was $1,875,151. They have until Feb. 20 to make submissions to the board regarding the budget.

Father Disappears From Family, Job

A 25-year-old mother of two small children appealed Thursday for her missing husband to get in touch with her.

Mrs. Gay Olson, 1175 Hampshire, said her husband, William James, 29, disappeared Saturday afternoon and police have found no trace.

"It's a complete mystery," she said, on the verge of tears.

"NEVER BEFORE"
"I don't know what to think, whether he's sick, whether he's got amnesia. He's never done this sort of thing before and we never had an argument."

Mr. Olson apparently finished his milk deliveries early Saturday afternoon for Northwestern Creamery Ltd., abandoned his milk truck and small change and drove off in the family car, she said.

"He left me no money, Terry, my eldest at two, cries out for his daddy day and night, and

OPERATIONS

Mrs. Olson has had several operations during the past five years on a polio-damaged leg.

"I used to be a practical nurse, but I can't work now. Even if I could, I don't know what I'd do with Debbie (12 months)."

Mr. Olson is believed to be driving a blue 1956 Cadillac convertible, with a blue top.

"I expected him home at about 5:30 p.m. Saturday," Mrs. Olson said. "He's never been late before."

Vancouver's Home Doomed?

Capt. George Vancouver's birthplace in King's Lynn, Norfolk, England, will be torn down if a planning application by a property company is granted.

The story is reported in the Jan. 26 issue of the Daily Telegraph of London. It says that the 18th-century building is "believed to be" the birthplace of the Royal Navy captain who navigated the B.C. coast and gave his name to the island and the city of Vancouver.

The Second Covent Garden Property Company is to make the application to pull down the

PLAQUE DISPLAYED

The property was sold to the company by Robert Bucke, a tailor, who said the deed showed it was owned by Capt. Vancouver's father, who worked at the custom house in King's Lynn.

A plaque records that it is Capt. Vancouver's birthplace. Mr. Bucke said he doesn't think there is any doubt about it.

He has been using the tiny, high-roofed property as a store-room. Canadians still call to photograph it.

Last year, Mr. Bucke reported, he offered to sell the building to the city of Vancouver for about $5,700, the cost to include dismantling brick by brick, crating and shipping.

He said Mayor William Rathie wrote back showing keen interest, but city council was unable to find funds for the project.

Demolition, therefore, would seem to be the fate of the old building.

"NOT VANDALS"

"We are not vandals," a spokesman for the owners said. "We are making every attempt on our site to preserve anything worthy of preservation, but this building is beyond retention."

Capt. Vancouver was buried in St. Peter's churchyard in Petersham, Surrey on May 18, 1781.

Mayor Rathie laid a wreath at the grave in 1963 on the 16th anniversary of Capt. Vancouver's death. Other British Columbians present were Dr. J. V. Fisher, agent-general for B.C.; Mayor Beth Wood of New Westminster and Mayor C. H. Day of Kamloops.

Vocational Locale Stays in Doubt

Greater Victoria's planned vocational school may have to be relocated, trustee Leslie Karagialis suggested Thursday.

He made the statement following a meeting earlier this week with B.C. Hydro officials concerning assembly of a site for the school at Burnside Road and the Trans-Canada Highway.

B.C. Hydro owns 11 acres at the site, which it plans to use for an equipment service centre. Hydro has said it would swap for an equivalent area somewhere in Saanich, but one deal has already fallen through because of ratepayer's protests. Mr. Karagialis said the Hydro officials "were cordial but we didn't gain anything... it still hinges on the alternate site."

'Wild' Man Bit Store Detective

A "wild" shoplifter bit a female store detective when she apprehended him on a department store parking lot, central magistrate's court was told Thursday.

Store security officer Margaret Campbell said when she stopped Stefan Krancovic, 478 Cecilia, on the store parking lot about 5:45 p.m. Dec. 28, for suspected shoplifting, he grabbed her shoulder and bit her upper right arm.

She told court she was wearing a coat and a heavy sweater at the time, and the following day the tooth marks were still visible.

PLEADS GUILTY

Krancovic pleaded guilty to a charge of theft over $50, and also to a charge of theft under $50.

Court was told the accused was in a "wild fit" and it took several store employees to hold him until the police arrived.

He was remanded by Magistrate William Ostler until Feb. 10 for a pre-sentence report.

A 33-year-old man who has spent the greater part of the last 12 years in jail was sentenced to six months after pleading guilty to trying to steal a car early Thursday morning.

George F. Vaux of Brentwood Bay was arrested after trying to start a car parked on Broad Street by cranking the ignition wires.

Constable Peter Voth told

court the accused had pulled five wires loose from under the car's dashboard.

Vaux told Magistrate Ostler that alcohol was his main problem and he entered the car thinking it was his own.

"It's that the way you ordinarily start your own car?" asked the magistrate.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett told court the accused had a lengthy criminal record dating to 1955, mostly for forgery and uttering.

Four dogs which were allowed to run loose in Saanich municipality cost their owners a total of $40 when they pleaded guilty in central court to dog-at-large charges.

"The municipality is riddled with dogs running free, and it has to stop," Magistrate Ostler said. "It's getting to be a major difficulty."

Fined $10 each were John Benson, 1293 Peralmon, Richard Sewell, 567 Obed, Mary Green, 3013 Albina, and Duncan Kennedy, 956 Claremont.

Nettie Romanuk of Port Alberni was convicted of attempted theft under $50 from a downtown Victoria department store on Dec. 23 and was fined $75.

The owner of a sawed-off shotgun was given a suspended sentence Thursday afternoon after Magistrate Ostler read a probation officer's report on the owner.

Jorgen V. Hagstrom, 3154 Donald, pleaded guilty in central court last week to having a shotgun with a barrel less than 20 inches long.

The magistrate said that while it was illegal to have such a weapon, and the police were quite right in their charge, the news of the gun had reached the police out of spite.

He told court the accused "is a man who has been wronged," and there was no indication that he had been planning to use the gun.

Nine prosecution witnesses testified in traffic court Thursday at the first day of a preliminary hearing for one of the drivers involved in a rear-end crash which claimed two lives in December near Elk Lake.

The hearing will resume at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

George A. Wilk, 52, of 1278 Denman, elected trial by judge and jury when he appeared earlier in central magistrate's court charged with dangerous driving and impaired driving.

His wife, Pauline, and 15-year-old Christopher Berryman of 5174 Santa Clara died as a result of the Dec. 4 accident on the Patricia Bay Highway at Piedmont.

The Wilk car rammed the rear of a camper truck attempting to make a left turn off the highway. The youth was riding in the rear of the truck driven by Maurice Neal of Sidney.

Three witnesses testified in traffic court were William Leslie Noon, of Vancouver, $100, driving while disqualified; S. A. Bittencourt, 1377 May, $350, impaired driving; Robert Oke, 510 Alpha, $40, careless driving; Donald Glen Curry, 824 Tolmie, $100, driving while disqualified.

Long Haul Prank Backfires On Pranksters

FOREST GROVE, Ore. (UPI) — Upperclassmen of a fraternity at Pacific University decided to pull a prank on pledge president George Coutts Tuesday night, so they blindfolded him, drove nearly 200 miles and deposited him in a garage dump.

When the chuckling pranksters completed their long drive back to the campus, near Portland, they found Coutts at the fraternity house sound asleep—as he had been for sometime.

It seems the bewildered pledge president, who was dumped out on Vashon Island, near Seattle, knuckled at the door of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scheuermann and explained his plight.

The Scheuermanns, deciding to play a prank of their own, called a friend who owns an airplane.

The pilot, O. A. Mosley, flew Coutts back to the college and the young fraternity man was sound asleep when his weary abductors arrived home hours later.

Garden Notes

Fight Leaf-Curl Now

By M. V. CHESNUT

It is, hard to realize that we are already well past the winter solstice; that every day brings a few more minutes of daylight than the day before, and that each day the noonday sun is a little higher in the sky. This gradual lengthening of the hours of daylight is having its effect upon the chemistry of our garden plants, and while you can't see it, strange changes are taking place within their tissues. There are stirrings of life deep within the woody branches of our shrubs and trees.

In particular, the buds of our peach and almond trees are swelling, and in one sense this is a danger signal, for if you are going to spray against the peach leaf-curl disease, it must be done before these buds crack open.

This is a beast of a disease, with the first obvious symptoms appearing soon after the tree buds out fully in the spring. The leaves turn red, blistered, curled and distorted, and eventually fall, and while an otherwise healthy tree will usually push out a second set of leaves, the strain in making two sets of leaves every year is enormous. Sooner or later, unless the infection is checked, the tree weakens and dies.

Fortunately, leaf-curl is a superficial disease, never penetrating deeply into the sap and roots of the tree. Once a tree becomes infected, the dormant spores of the disease spend the winter on the bud scales, ready to re-infect the leaves as they emerge from the buds. In other words, your tree must "catch" the disease afresh every spring, and if we can only kill the spores when the buds are swelling but before they crack open, the tree has a good chance of coming through the summer without the leaves becoming swollen and blistered.

Some peaches, notably the variety Renlon, are resistant to leaf-curl but none is wholly immune. Well-trained trees protected from rain by the overhang of the roof seem less likely to become infected, but the only surefire control is to spray very thoroughly with an effective fungicide, and at the right time. A single spraying in February will usually do the trick, although personally I prefer to play safe and spray twice a year, once in November just after the leaves fall and again in February before the swelling buds crack open.

What kind of spray? About the most commonly used is liquid lime sulphur, one pint in one gallon of water. This is cheap and effective, but it has a foul odor and discolors painted surfaces and I wouldn't recommend it for trees trained against a house wall.

Any fungicide based on copper will do a good job against leaf-curl; these too are inexpensive and readily available in any garden shop. Bordeaux Mixture, Niagara Brand Bordo, CIL Tri-Cop and Buisol are all good. These copper sprays may cause some temporary staining of paintwork but, unlike lime sulphur, the stains will wash off.

There are more modern sprays available, non-staining and even more effective, but correspondingly more expensive. These are based on captan, thiram, phenyl mercury or maneb fungicides. Any mercuric spray recommended for lawn diseases — Paragon Turf Spray, Green Cross Dormant Spray — will do a good job against leaf-curl.

It is most important that the spraying be thorough, for even one tiny bud missed in the process could re-infect your whole tree. The efficiency of the spray can be vastly increased by adding a "wetting agent" which causes the spray solution to spread evenly over the bark and buds and makes it more penetrating and sticking. Later's Surfactant is good, or ordinary dormant spray oil, or you could substitute any common liquid dishwashing detergent at the rate of two tablespoons per gallon of spray.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Airs His Thoughts

The temptation to be well-thought-of by those around us can lead us into greater sins against the spirit than any of the classical temptations, such as lust, greed, or love of power.

The true course of world history — properly understood — doesn't consist of events, but of motives; the events are only symptoms, but we mistakenly take them for causes.

The current rage for spy novels and spy films and spy TV shows is our way of having our aggressive cake and eating it, too — for a spy, by definition, is a man who can lie, steal and kill, and still stay unpunished and "within the law" of the country he is working for.

The same beauty that initially attracts a man eventually repels him if there is no strength of character beneath it; and the same strength that initially attracts a woman eventually repels her if there is no tenderness of character beneath it.

We have "magicians" but whatever happened to "givers"? And we have "preludes" and "postludes" and "interludes" but whatever happened to plain "ludes"?

One of the subtlest and least-known of Montaigne's observations — in profound anticipation of Freud — is that "There is as much difference between us and ourselves as between us and others."

Those plins some college students wear, "Make Love, Not War," embody a deep psychological truth: that an exaggerated power drive is a perversion and a thwarting of the erotic instinct in man, and aggressors from Alexander the Great to Hitler have always been deficient in the erotic area.

Try though we may to keep it out, vanity creeps in through all the little interstices of character: for instance, it is certainly a virtue to concede a point, but how many of us can do so without a tremor of pride at our magnanimity?

Only a man we have persuaded can be trusted; a man we have subdued must always be watched — and this is the practical advantage of reason over force, which conquering nations never understand.

We look to others for sympathy at our bad luck, yet we resent it if others are envious of our good luck; but why should we expect the one and not the other?

Perhaps nothing is as characteristic of a woman as the way she behaves toward hired help when no one else is around.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Sean Aids Workless

LONDON (MANA) — Sean Connery, free of his James Bond commitments, is turning director for a film very close to his Scottish heart. He has already narrated a documentary for television on the conditions that prevail in the Fairfield Docks near his native Clyde for the men who made the ships that made Britain great. There is now enormous unemployment on the Clyde and Sean will appear in a full-length film on the subject which he will also direct... Wife Diane Connery, Mrs. Connery, sold her novel, The Manipulator, to the well-known London publishers, Hodder and Stoughton, sending them the first 40 pages without her name on the manuscript.

"After they bought it, I let my agent tell them my name," said Diane, "and the editor said, 'I would have published it with slattery if your name had been Arthur Gloggs, but now I shall publish it with even more slattery.'"

Not from Diane, I learned that Sean is furious with his brother for allowing himself to be made up to look like him for the Italian 007 spoof, OK, OK Connery. They can't use this title in England for obvious reasons. Here it will be called, Operation Kid Brother, which is almost as bad.

It's the last marriage for Cary Grant. One of the Universal people in Europe, a close friend of Cary's, tells me that the debonair actor who turned 63 this month, has had it as far as wives are concerned. Cary is always trying to help others apparently, but has not learned how to help himself.

Joe Strick called me about his Ulysses picture. "We're having a problem in Chicago," said Joe, "where a warrant will be issued against us if the picture is shown as planned in mid-March. All the dialogue is as James Joyce wrote it and some of the exhibitors are afraid it might be considered offensive." They might, but after Virginia Woolf and The Game Is Over, the public must now be unshockable.

Dirk Bogarde and Susanam York co-star in Mr. Sebastian, for Paramount, which is planning 17 films for Europe this year. With Red Grange in charge, this is entirely possible. Bud was the boy who brought the Beatles and the Bonds to United Artists when he was running that company here.

Serge Bourgeois and I were discussing his star, Brigitte Bardot, again—Two Weeks in September—and he told me that if I had given her advance warning of my coming to the studio at Billancourt, she would probably have been in a better mood and we could have had a chat. "Sometimes she won't talk to reporters for weeks," said Serge. This is usually after she believes that the press has mistreated her. Like when she went to England on location with the picture. Reporters got wind of the fact that she was supposed to stay at a hotel in Carlyle on the way to the shooting in Scotland. She was given a small room and when she walked out in a huff, lo and behold, the street was lined with press men and photographers. Now how did they know she would walk out? It's incidents like this that sour a star on publicity.

ERMA BOMBECK and Martykins

She Can't Kick Baby Talk

My neighbor, Marty, is what you would call a child-gearer woman. When a panel of pediatricians recommended parents use baby talk to communicate with their youngsters, Marty was the first to crawl around on all fours, slobbering uncontrollably and giggling, "No, ne, now, noo, noo."

That was 10 years ago. Today the kids talk like scholarship winners. It's Marty who can't kick the baby talk habit.

The other night, after she had just said to her husband, "Two laid out you jamminies and your bow-wow. As soon as you drink your moo cow, you can give mama a sugar and go upie-daisy to beddie-bye," he looked at her and said quietly, "Marty, you oughta have your tongue fixed. I think you're regressing. Have you considered a self-improvement speech course to enlarge your vocabulary?"

Marty was hurt and shocked. She hadn't realized her speaking habits were that bad. Thus was born Marty's "word-a-day program."

It was a self-imposed discipline that found her every morning with closed eyes, flipping through the dictionary, and letting her finger point to one word. That was her word for the day. She would be compelled by her own rules to use the word in a sentence at least five times before the sun went down.

We bled for poor Marty. Her word-for-the-day was a sometimes almost impossible to work into everyday conversation. Like tea-bae fly. At a women's luncheon, Marty threw it out, "Oh, is that a tea-bae fly?" "No," said her hostess coldly, "that's a raisin and I'll thank you to keep your observations down to a roar!"

Or at a cocktail party when she was telling her husband's boss, "I was lying around 'supine' all morning until the mailman came." At their shocked expression, she added, "That's not a dirty word. It's an adjective meaning lying down, lethargic."

Usually, we could pick out her word-of-the-day by the number of times she used it. We recorded one sentence as follows: "My problems have been infinitesimal lately, but then, I say to myself every morning, 'Marty, you are too young to let infinitesimal things bother you.' At this rate, you'll end up with infinitesimal flu!" That was three down and two to go.

As the pressures of home and family increased, it became apparent that poor Marty often had no time to look up the meanings of her words. Thus, we would hear her lament, "I have always wanted to play the clavicle." Or, "I never win at Monotony. The kids buy up all the railroads and fertilities."

Last night, she asked her husband, "Did Fred pass his civil service elimination or was he having one of those days?"

Her husband reflected quietly a moment, then said, "Martykins, let's find our way back to snookums, horthies and moo cows. I liked you better when I couldn't understand what you were saying."

Bombing View

'Hanoi Must Swap'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Harrison Salisbury, who caused a furor with his dispatches from Hanoi, told congress Thursday he opposes a unilateral halt in U.S. bombing raids on North Vietnam.

Salisbury, an assistant managing editor of the New York Times, was the first U.S. correspondent to report on the Vietnam war from Hanoi. He stirred sharp controversy with his reports of civilian casualties resulting from U.S. air raids.

KEY QUESTION

Salisbury told the Senate foreign relations committee he opposed a bombing halt if there was "nothing from them" in return. But he added he hoped a halt eventually might be arranged before more people are killed.

Questioned whether the bombing in the north should be halted without a reciprocal move by Hanoi, he answered:

"If the question is, do we stop bombing right out of the blue with nothing from them, I'd say no."

TIMING IMPORTANT

Salisbury said a bombing halt "might be a good move," but suggested timing was all important.

He said events seem to be pushing Hanoi toward "exploration of a settlement of the war" and urged "secret" peace negotiations.

Salisbury said it was his impression, after talking to "very high" Hanoi officials, that North Vietnam would prefer direct contact with the U.S. rather than negotiate through a third party.

FEAR VOKED

He said there was considerable fear among North Vietnamese officials that Peking might try to take over the Hanoi government if it became too closely allied with Moscow.

The correspondent said the North Vietnamese told him China would enter hostilities if the U.S. "brought the war closer to the Chinese frontier."

He said he was told specifically that Peking would fight if the U.S. invaded North Vietnam with land forces across the 17th parallel, or made amphibious landings on the northern coast.

Barrett Gets Answers

David Barrett, the New Democratic Party's welfare critic, got a few answers from Welfare Minister Dan Campbell Thursday about the operations of Brannan Lake school for boys near Nanaimo and Willingdon school for girls at Burnaby.

In reply to questions placed on the order paper by the NDP member for Coquitlam, Mr. Campbell advised the legislature that as of Dec. 31, 1966, there were 184 boys, three social workers and a staff of 73, plus 10 public works employees at Brannan Lake.

On the same date, said the minister, Willingdon had 91 girls, a staff of 50 and three social workers, who were being assisted two days a week by seven "master degree students and supervisors" from the UBC school of social work.

Howitzers
To Fire
Salute

A 21-gun salute will be fired at Work Point at noon Monday to mark the anniversary of the accession to the throne of Queen Elizabeth II. Lieut. Stewart MacDonald will be gun position officer in charge of 25 men from 5 (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, who will fire four 165-m.m. howitzers.

More Money

Parking
Needs
Pressed

City Hall wants to drive ahead with the building of parking buildings in downtown Victoria, and council will be asked to provide more money.

At present, all income from parking meters, less the cost of maintenance and the equivalent in cash of one mill on the city's tax rate, is put into an off-street parking reserve fund which is used to provide buildings.

The Downtown Merchants' Association has complained that when the decision was made in 1961, the money equivalent of one mill, which is turned back to the city, was $94,852. Since then it has grown.

LESS RETURNED

Now, although the parking meter income has remained about static, the value of a mill was (in 1966) $116,130.

That meant, Mayor Hugh Stephen explained Thursday to the city council finance committee, that much less was being turned back to the fund for parking buildings. In 1967 the mill will be worth almost $120,000, which would mean that the fund was receiving $25,000 less each year than it did when it was originated.

"It is not really fair, and it's vital to the city that we have these buildings," the mayor said. "After all, if we are to maintain our downtown in a healthy state and keep it from being supplanted by some other 'downtown,' parking and roads are most important."

BYLAW CHANGE

Accordingly, the committee will ask council to alter its by-laws setting the city's "drag" from the parking meter income at a fixed $95,000.

It will also ask that the profit (less expenses) from the parking buildings on Yates and View be turned back to the fund for new facilities.

There are three such buildings in the city. The one in Centennial Square is wholly owned by the city, while the buildings off Yates and View were built on debenture issues underwritten by downtown businessmen and for which they are paying by a superimposed levy of up to five mills on their tax rates.

Negotiations are now in progress for land on the north side of Johnson Street, between Douglas and Blanshard, as a site for a new building.

Radar Checkup

January Horrible?
Three Were Worse

The month of January was the fourth worst for rain recorded in Greater Victoria's weather history.

Dark grey skies sent down 2.4 inches of rain, nearly double the normal 4.33 inches, and there was measurable precipitation on 22 days.

According to the weather bureau there were 62.9 hours of bright sunshine during January.

Merger Vote Near
For Peninsula Tip

Annexation of Sidney and North Saanich will likely be put to a vote at the end of the year, North Saanich Reeve J. B. Cumming said Thursday.

All information on the change will be accumulated by June, and from then on it will be a question of educating residents.

POPULATION BASIS

Reeve Cumming said that, if the two districts were to amalgamate, it would be as a district municipality, because status was calculated on population per acre.

He had no idea what name would be given to the municipality "when we are ready to think of things like that there will be plenty of people with ideas," he said.

Both areas would derive benefits from amalgamation.

"The principal benefit would be the strength we would gain, instead of having two small districts running around trying to get things done."

Reeve Cumming said one shopping centre, in Sidney,

would be better than several scattered around.

BOUND TO GROW

"North Saanich is bound to grow, because we have the room for expansion, but Sidney has little room."

"The annual assessment value for North Saanich is about $3,000,000, while Sidney's is just over $2,250,000," added the reeve.

Spring Flowers Later

Survival of the Fete

The Spring Flower Festival weathered a few storms Thursday at the Victoria Chamber of Commerce's tourist industry committee meeting.

The festival will be held in May instead of early in April, as last year.

"We found out that was too early last year," committee-man Pat Frumento said after the meeting. "Later on we'll have warmer weather and better crowds."

Alternately challenged as too little, too soon, an "abortive effort" and "too much work for too few people," the festival prevailed—and now is scheduled for immediately after the Victoria Day celebration, if feasible.

Opponent Bernard Cox said, "For the money and time expended, the spring flower festival is not worthwhile."

Committee chairman William Cox said, "It is a lot of work for a few people, and probably too large a project for this committee."

"Give it a couple more years and let it develop," said Mr. Frumento. "It has been increasing in popularity the last two or three years."

"It could be a benefit," Mr. Cox retorted. "But it should have a paid manager."

"It is time we took off our little short pants and took the long view," said Edward McFayden, past chairman of the Victoria Day celebration.

Mr. Frumento agreed heartily, and proposed Mr. McFayden for chairman of the festival committee. He accepted, after it was decided the festival be staged.

The committee agreed to call on the tourist bureau and visitors' bureau for help in promoting and staging the celebration, and gave Mr. McFayden a free hand to develop entertainment. He was entrusted with studying the feasibility of the proposed dates, May 23 to 28.

The committee approved organization of a goodwill tour of Alberta some time late in September to show films and other promotional material to groups in major cities.

Russ Hay, a Victoria cycling enthusiast and Island representative of a dominion cycling group, asked for some chamber help in promoting a Vancouver Island cycling race.

The committee voted to take the matter to an associated Island chambers meeting, to determine the feeling of other communities.

Predictions that the Victoria tax rate will be nudged sharply upward were buttressed Thursday when City Treasurer James Bramley indicated increased school costs alone would make it impossible to hold the line at 62.5 mills.

The treasurer said non-sharable costs in the massive $15,355,736 Greater Victoria school district budget would amount to $1,700,000 and that sum alone could boost the rate by six mills.

WAIT FOR PROVINCE

The treasurer was careful to qualify his statement, however. No final figure could be given, he said, until the province announced the extent of its grants. "The government has always come through in the past, and we are certainly hoping that it will do so again," Mr. Bramley said.

Mayor Stephen said the total school board budget was up 18.7 per cent in Victoria and he had been informed by other municipal leaders that their increases were about the same. In Central Saanich costs were up 18 per cent.

In the course of discussion Mr. Bramley said that in 1967 the value of one mill on the tax rate would be close to $120,000 as compared to $116,130 in 1966.

The value of the mill has climbed steadily over the past five years, with its greatest leap in 1966, when it increased $12,909.

Mayor Stephen said members of city council had been invited to sit in with school board members at a budget discussion Feb. 16.

GENERAL RATE

"There is, of course, nothing we can do to alter the school board budget and the school rate (23.3 in 1966), which is added to the general rate set by the city," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgell.

"Still, it is informative to talk the matter over with school board members."

Road Closed

A snow slide has closed a section of the Northern Trans-Provincial Highway between Terrace and Prince Rupert, the provincial highways department said Thursday.

A collie of champion blood-line is missing from her Langford home.

The owners, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Flynn of 828 Hockley Road, are puzzled by the disappearance of the dog and fear she may have been stolen.

"We're quite worried," Mrs. O'Flynn said Thursday night. "She never wandered before. Why should she go now?"

The collie, worth $500, is O'Flynn's Bold Bonny Lass. She was

'Socialistic'

Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch surprised the members on the government side of the legislature Thursday when he declared that public housing is "purely a socialistic venture" and that he doesn't want to see much of this in British Columbia.

The Socred MLA warned that most of the people in this province would be lining up for row houses if the government decides to subsidize this type of venture.

He said it would be far better to assist people in buying new homes or in fixing up old ones. (See also Page 32.)

"If we find $500 is not enough (the amount proposed for the new home acquisition grant) let's make it $1,000," said Mr. Bruch, as Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell looked on in wonder.

"But I think we'd be doing an injustice to be going into rows and rows of public housing."

Public housing is "not the end all" in idyllic living, the Esquimalt MLA told the legislature. "You should go out to the navy housing area in my constituency" which has its own form of "class segregation."

"They have the best of houses, facilities, subsidized rentals, playgrounds, good class citizens—yet most will tell you after being there a year or two they're only too glad to get out, because they don't have the normal system of checks and balances."

Mr. Bruch also proposed a ferry link between Sooke and U.S. coastal highway 101 west of Port Angeles as a fast route for trucks and through traffic, as a continuing policy of bypassing traffic away from cities.

He called for study on the effects of the use of detergents in his riding where septic tanks are used, because soil problems are occurring and "unless we lick this problem we may have to go into costly sewage systems."

Tisdalle Explains

Road 'Scandal'
All a Mistake

A demand by Oak Bay Liberal MLA Allan Macfarlane for a full-scale government investigation of a statement by John Tisdalle was answered Thursday by the Saanich and the Islands Social Creditler himself.

Mr. Macfarlane demanded in the legislature earlier Thursday a probe of Mr. Tisdalle's House statement Tuesday that businessmen have maps of the proposed route of the new Patricia Bay Highway.

He said Mr. Tisdalle "made a shocking revelation when he charged there had been a leak from the highways department" about the route.

"If these charges are true, Mr. Speaker, then the government has a shocking scandal on its hands," said Mr. Macfarlane. "The member has said somebody has inside information and is speculating."

The Oak Bay member challenged Mr. Tisdalle to "prove his charges or resign," and said the government should resign if the charges are true.

But Mr. Tisdalle later explained outside the House the Oak Bay member "got the wrong impression from my speech Tuesday and interpreted my remarks in a way which I had not intended."

He said the highways department's survey stakes are in plain sight on the Saanich Peninsula and the plans with which businessmen are making decisions were contained in a capital region transportation study published in March of 1965.

WAITING LIST

These maps "have been published in our papers, which no doubt has furnished enough material for interested parties and businessmen to dig out for their own benefit," Mr. Tisdalle said.

Mr. Macfarlane also told the House 846 students from Victoria schools will have no place to go for vocational training this year because there is a two-year waiting list at the B.C. Institute of Technology in Burnaby, and the vocational school project here is stalled because the government can't find a place for a B.C. Hydro truck parking lot.

He urged the government to build new ferries which could be used for hauling just freight, and said the government should offer a matching grant toward the cost of building a convention centre here.

$10 Reward

A Christmas-present bicycle was stolen last week from the home of Robert Earl, 12, of 841 Viewfield, and mother Mrs. Lucille Earl, who is on welfare, says a friend has offered a $10 reward for its return. Information about the green Sunstar with a banana-style seat should be given to Esquimalt police or Mrs. Earl at 382-7356.

Missing Collie Looks Like Lassie

The pair have produced two litters, 14 pups in July, 1965, and 10 in September, 1966. King is from the U.S. and Bonny's ancestors are from England.

"They are the same kind of collie as Lassie," Mrs. O'Flynn said.

Her mate, O'Flynn's Big Bold Image, called King, is beginning to fret at Bonny's absence and is off his food.

The valuable dog was last seen when she had her supper Friday night. She was gone Saturday morning. The two dogs slept in the backyard in a kennel.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: Remember the coast-to-coast roasting I got from readers who were mad at me because I didn't approve of the bride and groom singing at their own wedding? Well, I have received over 600 letters from readers who are mad at THEM. Here is a sample of what my week has been like:

Hilldale, Mich.: I was absolutely flabbergasted at the number of assorted nuts who sang at their own weddings. If my husband had opened up his mouth to sing I Love You Truly when I walked down the aisle I would have cracked up.

Long Island, N.Y.: Where in the world were the clergymen when those bawdy brides and grooms sang during the wedding ceremony? Why did they permit the house of God to be used as a setting for a vaudeville act? If a couple is so happy they must give voice to their feelings, why can't they wait and sing at the reception?

Albuquerque, N.M.: We of the Congregational Church do not permit sanctuary theatrics. Such exhibitionism has no place in a religious ceremony.

Chicago: I thank God every day for the Canon Law of the Presbyterian Church which makes it mandatory for the minister to approve all music to be played at weddings and funerals. Since I have occupied this pulpit I have had some outrageous requests. Recently I had to say no to a woman who wanted the church organist to play Casey Jones at her husband's funeral. "It was his favorite song," she sighed. "He would have wanted it that way."

Columbus, Ohio: No Catholic ever sung at his own wedding. Our church does not tolerate such nonsense.

Davenport, Iowa: After reading your column about the musical weddings, I feel very left out. I was married two years ago and it was just an ordinary church wedding. My husband didn't burst out in a song, my father-in-law didn't play the trombone, my little sister didn't do a toe dance, and my mother (who used to be a famous stripper) didn't go into her act. The guests must have been disappointed.

Houston: Here's a suggestion for those singing brides and grooms: Why not run an ad and sell tickets? The proceeds could help defray the honeymoon expenses — two weeks in the mental hospital of their choice.

Marion, Ohio: That nut who sang Second Time Around to her Number Two spouse probably sang at her first wedding, too. I suggest that she start rehearsing now for the next one. An appropriate selection: Number Three is Lucky for Me. Or better still, why doesn't she quit getting married and go into show business which is really what she wants anyway.

Hutchinson, Kansas: Why were you surprised, Ann Landers, to discover that people sometimes sing at their own nuptials? Every day a couple of screwballs get married on motorcycles, at home plate, on skates, atop a flag-pole, on horseback, in jail, underwater, and on a TV show to get free gifts. Recently I read where an English couple was married in the elevator where they first met. You, of all people, Ann, should know that there is nothing so racy, so ridiculous, so preposterous that somebody, somewhere won't do it. — MR. M. R. T.

Dear M.R.T.: AMEN, Brother. Amen.

Golf Club Dinner

Royal Colwood Golf Club held its first family dinner of the year this past Sunday.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Dave Ewing, Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Denson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mayzes, Sr., Dr. Roger Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Wally Plimpton and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cuppige and Mr. Buster Cuppige.

Next family dinner is Feb. 19.

Royal Roads IODE Chapter Comes of Age at Dinner

It was a 21st birthday party for the Royal Roads Chapter IODE.

In honor of this occasion members of the chapter held a gala dinner at 1365 Rockland Avenue where two enormous tables were set out with the finest of old linen and graced with silver and candles. A most beautiful cake, loosed in white and pink and decked out in flags with a lacy crown of "21" centred the festive board.

A number of special guests were introduced including Mrs. V. H. V. Sheppard of National Council, Mrs. H. G. Heyworth, Provincial President from Vancouver, Miss C. F. M. MacNab, regent of Municipal Chapter; Mrs. Peter W. Bell, organizing secretary Municipal Chapter, and Mrs. A. H. C. Phipps and Mrs. N. Ormond, past Municipal Regents.

Royal Roads Chapter had a busy year, and retiring president Mrs. C. C. Risch paid tribute to her executive, including Mrs. J. F. C. Blowsy (at present holidaying in Hawaii) who had made the pretty birthday cake.

Mrs. B. T. Shaw was named new regent of the chapter.

Secretary Mrs. S. K. Hayward reported there had been 10 regular and two executive meetings during the year with a membership of 28.

She noted the treasurer, Mrs. D. E. Teng reported receipts for the year as $1,442 resulting from a theatre night, two small auction sales, a bake sale, a rummage sale, and a doll project.

It was reported that $500 was spent on education including two bursaries given by the chapter and donations of $110 to municipal and secondary education.

Services at Home and Abroad had spent a total of $437, it was noted. This amount included care for two veterans, and needy families.

During the year the chapter had made 32 quilts, two afghans, 20 baby sweaters and 17 stuffed animals as well as sending 20 personal property bags to the North West Territories to be distributed to patients in a hospital.

Reports were also given by Mrs. B. T. Shaw on membership, Mrs. Hayward on work at the Veterans' Hospital, and education by Mrs. Helen B. Rattray. Mrs. Rattray reported the George H. Gardner Bursary for $150 was held for a second year by William Burk who is in medical college at UBC and that the Ballet Bursary was held by Jane Bellis in Montreal.

New officers of the chapter include Mrs. B. T. Shaw, standard bearer; Mrs. J. F. C. Blowsy, services, and councilors Mrs. D. How, Mrs. M. G. Gourlay, and Mrs. H. S. Brubacher.

Hawaiian Honeymoon

Baskets of pink and white gladiolus decorated St. Luke's Parish Church and white chrysanthemums were on the altar when Sharyn Lynn Hinton became the bride of Mr. Michael James Romaine.

Ven. Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hay Hinton, 1750 Ash Road, Gordon Head, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Romaine of Kinnaird, B.C.

Mr. H. Bergink was organist. The petite, dark-haired bride who walked to the altar with her father was lovely in a long, Empire-style gown of white peau de soie with lace applique. Sleeves were elbow length and a small train swept from a back bow at the waistline. Her short, scalloped tulle veil was caught to a pearl tiara and she carried a bouquet of red roses. Her only jewelry was a gold wrist watch, a gift from the groom.

Miss Darleen Hinton was maid of honor for her sister and the Misses Ann Lewis and Barbara Clifford were bridesmaids.

They wore long gowns of turquoise blue peau de soie styled on Empire A lines. Their headpieces were roses of the same material as their dresses and matching tulle. They carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations with pink streamers. Mr. Dan Romaine of Kinnaird was best man for his brother and Mr. Richard Marshall and Mr. John Sedlack showed guests to the pews.

A reception following the ceremony was held at Uplands Golf Club where the bride's table was centred with a three-tiered cake on a silver stand. Pink rosebuds in silver vases and pink candles in silver holders were on either side of the pink and white cake. Mr. Vic Wilson proposed the bridal toast.

Leaving to spend a honeymoon in Hawaii, the new Mrs. Romaine chose a dark green wool suit with small pink collar, black whimsy hat, black accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

Victoria Expert Frowns At Movie Drunk-Cure

By RAY KERR

Certain movies of drunks are invaluable, in rehabilitation work, but a new film technique is not favored by a Victoria Salvation Army official.

The new technique, based on the old theme of "If only you could have seen yourself," is being tried in experiments in the U.S.

In the experiment, some problem drinkers are shown movies of their antics while under the influence, with success claimed in several cases.

But in the experiment, subjects are brought in drunk,

Technique Called Gamble

sobered up, then offered a drink. That's when cameras roll.

"This is the part I object to," said Brig. Cecil Bonar, newly in charge of Salvation Army's men's social and rehabilitation centre here.

"I can't see us giving any alcoholic a drink on a gamble that it'll help him. We try to make them give up drinking."

FILMS CAN HELP

But the officer, who's worked with Sally Ann in welfare across Canada and came here two months ago, thinks movies can do a great deal.

"We show Skid Road movies all the time," he pointed out.

"And I think they have a strong impact."

NO PREDICTION

"Of course, we're just trying to start this work," Dr. Cornelson said. "So I would not dare try to predict any long-range results."

"But believe me, we've already learned that self-image experience is a tremendously powerful technique for reaching the alcoholic."

Alcoholics involved in the program show marks of the classic problem drinker.

AND CONTINUE

They start out with good jobs and prove themselves ... start drinking ... lose job, family, reputation — and continue on the bottle.

The subjects are sobered up in a hospital setting and then offered a drink, with the cameras put in motion.

WORK PATTERN

"His response was nothing short of dramatic. Since then his interest in himself, his ability to work with the therapist, his improved daily work pattern, his diminished drinking — all suggest a definite change for the better."

So far, according to the experimenters, the three subjects involved have made favorable changes in their lives. Two have regular jobs — after being on the sidelines for years.

SHOULDN'T START

However, as Brig. Bonar points out, people shouldn't start rushing to make home movies of alcoholics in an attempt to help them.

It's just an experiment, he warned, and, as he stressed earlier, "giving alcoholics a drink doesn't seem to be the right way of going about it."

Offender Jailed

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Badle, 57, of no fixed address, has been declared to be a dangerous sexual offender and was sentenced to an indefinite term in jail.

Wingless Plane Tested

The HL-10 wingless lifting body built by Northrop Corporation for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is shown just before touching down at Edwards AFB, Calif., after successfully making its first free flight on Dec. 22. HL-10 was flown by Bruce A. Peterson, chief pilot for NASA's Flight Research Centre at Edwards AFB. After being air launched from wing of B52 flying at 45,000 feet, 5000-pound HL-10's free flight was of three minutes, seven seconds duration. Final horizontal landing speed was 264 miles per hour. HL-10 is second of two lifting body research craft built for NASA by Northrop, first being M3 which has made total of 14 free flights since its initial one in July 1966.

Russians Cool To Syrian Bid

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Syrian request for Soviet support in a "war of liberation" against Israel has received a cool response from the Kremlin, the weekly Al Sayyad said Thursday. The paper said Soviet authorities showed no sign of changing their policy of maintaining the status quo in the Middle East.

Manor Merchants Unhappily in Dark

By GEORGE INGLIS

Co-operation is a two-way street, according to some businessmen at Admirals and Craigflower Roads, where the provincial government is planning a restoration project on historic Craigflower Manor.

The properties of a service station, drive-in restaurant and motel on the corner where the 14-year-old manor is located, learned from the Colonist lately that deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace hopes for co-operation from the property owners on this site, when it comes to negotiations for the property.

NARY A MURMUR

Therein lies the problem — they had to learn from a newspaper some facts that are vital to their present and future livelihood, but have been unable to raise even a murmur of conjecture from the government on their future.

One of those most affected is Ben Laughren, former distance swimmer and proprietor of Big Ben's Drive-In.

"I'd sure like to know what is going on," the genial restaurateur said. "All we know is an assessor looked at the place two years ago, and we haven't heard a murmur since."

ABOUT SIX YEARS

Ben and his wife Edith have plowed everything they own into the place, including their labor and that of their children, for about six years.

Now, when they have finally paid off the equipment and Ben is able to go fishing once in a while, they would like to know where they stand.

"I favor the museum idea, and the preservation of our country's history. I would just like to know something about my own future, without having to read about it in a newspaper."

COMING AROUND

Mr. Laughren said the health inspector and other government inspectors keep coming around as though nothing was in the offing. He has had to spend $4,000 on renovations recently, a tidy sum when he has no idea how long he will be in business.

He snorted at the idea that Mr. Wallace hoped he would be co-operative: "That co-operation business works two ways. Don't you think he could give us a call once and let us know what is going on?"

SIMILAR STATE

George Griffin, proprietor of the Discovery Motel, is in a similar state of suspended animation.

He knows his property, which has more than 300 feet of waterfront, is frozen, and is quite agreeable to a satisfactory deal for its sale.

In the meantime, he and his wife have a business to run and, if they are going to be in business for another tourist season, some painting, carpeting and furnishing to be done.

FIRST REPORT

Similarly to Mr. Laughren, every request for specific information has been met with evasive action, and the recent newspaper story was the first factual report they had on their future possibilities.

The Griffins have been in the motel for only two years, but have struggled through hard times and are just beginning to get their heads above water, so their future operation is vital to them.

SOMEWHAT DIFFERENT

Ken and Bob Schwabe, co-proprietors of the Shell service station which is the other property that will be affected, are in a somewhat different position, since the oil company will be doing the negotiating and will probably locate them nearby.

Less familiar with the situation, since they only arrived from Alberta fairly recently, they were equally shocked to learn the newspaper had so much more knowledge of their future than themselves.

As it stands at present, they are truly able to say with conviction: "All I know is what I read in the newspaper."

Mrs. E. G. Lord Wins Eaton's "Safari to the Sun" Contest—A Jet Flight by Canadian Pacific Airlines for 5-Day, Fun-Filled Holiday at the Mark Hopkins Hotel

Shown above with Mr. J. Noble of Eaton's and Mr. Mutch of Canadian Pacific Airlines are the three top prize winners of Eaton's "Safari to the Sun" Contest. The draw was held Monday, January 30th, at 10:00 a.m. in Eaton's dining room with all winners present. The grand prize winner, Mrs. E. G. Lord, 3246 Wabash Road, won a 5-day holiday for two by Canadian Pacific "Empress" jet to the famed Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco. Mrs. J. D. Walker, 412 Superior Street, second prize winner, won a set of Birkdale luggage and Mr. Matt Nilsch, 1263 Derby Place, won a Konica 35-mm. camera.

Floodlighting Every Night Possible for City Hall

City Hall will be floodlit every night for the remainder of the centennial year if council approves a recommendation the finance committee made Thursday.

The building has been illuminated on weekends and special occasions up to now, but with the $1,200 allocated Thursday it will be possible to turn the floodlights on every night.

Injured Driver 'Fairly Good'

Holdup Suspect Kills Himself

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man shot himself to death shortly before noon Thursday when cornered by police in a lane minutes after a nearby loan company office had been robbed.

Police converged on the area in East End Vancouver after a report that the Commonwealth Acceptance Co. office had been held up by a bandit who fled in a car.

Minutes later police cornered a man in a lane near the loan company office, but as they moved in on him, he pulled a pistol from his pocket and shot himself in the heart. His name was withheld.

A 72-year-old Oak Bay man remains in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with head injuries received in a car accident on Oak Bay Avenue about 10:40 p.m. Wednesday.

William Leach of 686 Island Road was taken to hospital after his car went out of control near Beverley Place, travelled 35 feet along the sidewalk and hit a utility pole.

His wife Ruth was treated in the hospital's emergency ward and later released.

As a result of a Wednesday morning accident, Mrs. Doris Roshenko, 1116 North Park, remains in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with a broken right leg.

The 66-year-old woman was walking across the Blenheim and Herald intersection when the accident occurred. The car's driver was identified as Ehsa Sauriol, 1250 Douglas.

"It does look beautiful when it is lit up," said Mayor Hugh Stephen, "and I suppose it's not too much for this special year."

Members of the finance committee decided to subscribe to a proposal for a municipal year book for the city. It will contain pertinent information about City Hall and the operation of the city. Cost: $395 for 300 copies.

New Westminster Jaycees, who wrote asking that the city float be entered in their Festival Parade on May 20, will get a firm "No."

It is policy not to display the float before the city's own May 24 celebration.

Defence Test

An elite 14-man corps of B.C. Civil Defence members tested their skills in the bush around Beaver Lake Wednesday.

John H. Erb, CD co-ordinator, said the men came from throughout the province. "They now have the skill to lead search parties of volunteers when needed by police in their particular area," he said.

BONDED STOCK AND THE YOUNG EXEC.

Or how to impress higher-ups easily.

We'll give it to you straight from the shoulder. You don't need a suit from Savile Row to make an impression. Same with whisky. Gooderham's Bonded Stock goes down very nicely with higher-ups. It is a fine Canadian whisky with a flavour that is smooth and mellow. Ideal for the occasional business toast. And to celebrate life's sweet successes. One other point. A little knowledge and an appreciation of the finer things, like Bonded Stock is always noticed by others. So let yourself be known.

John D Booster Joins Race

By FRASER KELLY,
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Alberta MP Hugh Horner, who wants to "get rid of the garbage in parliament" and take the tariff off lariat ropes, announced Thursday he intends to run for the leadership of the Conservative party.

In a shot-from-the-hip

press conference which dumfounded newsmen, the 42-year-old surgeon said he would run against leader John Diefenbaker whom he described as "the greatest politician in our history."

He spent most of the news conference scorching newsmen for "crucifying" Mr. Diefenbaker. He added that most parliamentary reporters and television commentators are left-wing incompetents unqualified for their jobs.

And he agreed with his brother Jack (Cons. — Acadia) who said last week newsmen here are "cultures" who pick the bones of politicians and ignore serious news.

UNIFICATION OVER HUMP

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave second reading, or approval in principle, Thursday night to the government's controversial armed forces unification bill after rejecting 88 to 75 a Conservative amendment to send the bill to committee without second-reading approval.

It made for a surprise ending to a debate which most MPs had originally predicted would last about two weeks.

The Conservative move sought to refer the legislation to the defence and external affairs committees for public hearing before a vote on second reading—the key stage involving approval in principle.

LIFE AT STAKE

A legal authority said adoption of the motion would have killed the bill and could have brought down the minority government.

The 64 Conservatives on hand drew voting support from 11 NDP members and one Liberal, six Creditists, three Social Credit members and one independent, Maurice Allard (Sherbrooke).

ALMOST HOUR

The Commons division bells rang for almost an hour to summon MPs for the vote.

Immediately after the defeat of the Conservative amendment was announced, a vote was called on the government motion for second reading. No opposition MP rose to keep the debate going.

The second vote was 88 to 62.

SWITCHED SIDES

This time only 62 Conservatives opposed the government.

The 75 Liberals drew support from 10 NDP members, six Creditists, three Social Credit members and Mr. Allard.

Standings in the 265-seat House are: Liberals 130, Conservatives 66, NDP 21, Creditists 16, Social Credit 5, Independent 3, vacant 2.

HELLYER PRESSED

Earlier Thursday Conservative speakers in the debate continued to press Defence Minister Hellyer to allow committee hearings before the vote was called.

Mr. Hellyer insisted on following the regular House procedure

Budget Today: $700,000,000?

Premier Bennett will bring down his budget for the 1967-68 fiscal year in the legislature at 2:30 p.m. today. The Throne Speech debate wound up Thursday.

It is expected the budget will surpass the $700,000,000 mark, compared with B.C.'s total of about $639,000,000 for the current fiscal year which ends March 31.

The new budget will include an estimated $28,000,000 in additional tax rebates from Ottawa, to replace several federal-provincial cost-sharing programs which expire March 31.

Buttle Lake Attack

Were Experts Ignored? Liberal Asks

By Legislative Reporter

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane demanded an explanation from the government Thursday about why it did not seek the advice of its own biologists before allowing Western Mines Ltd. to dump its waste products into Buttle Lake.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Egan, who spoke later in the throne speech debate, offered no answer to his questions. But Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch told the House Strathcona Park is being polluted by the manner in which the problem is being handled.

(See also Page 13.)

Mr. Bruch, a Social Credit backbencher who was recently appointed deputy speaker, said it is unfortunate the Campbell River Water District took action which led to the stockpiling of mine tailings on land.

RAIN DOES IT

Heavy rainfall of up to 140 inches per year "is actually polluting the area which would not have been polluted had the tailings been put into the lake," he said.

A legislative committee was advised long ago that any tailings deposited on the surface of the land would be washed back into the streams and surface of the lake by the heavy rainfall, Mr. Bruch recalled.

TAILINGS FILED

Western Mines has been stockpiling its mine tailings in a tailings pond since three disposal permits issued by the Pollution Control Board were

Red Troops Shifting To East

WARSAW (AP) — Diplomatic sources said Thursday Russia has informed its Warsaw Pact allies of plans to withdraw about 50,000, or about 10 per cent, of its troops from Eastern Europe to bolster Soviet defences along the Chinese border.

The number of Soviet troops based in Eastern Europe countries is estimated at 250,000, most of them in East Germany.

EAST BERLIN (Reuters) — Foreign ministers of the Soviet Union and its six Warsaw Pact allies will meet here Monday to discuss relations with West Germany, sources said Thursday.

Red Guards Fight Red Guards

TOKYO (UPI) — Rival Red Guard groups supporting Mao Tse-tung battled in the streets of Peking last Monday and more than 250 people were injured, Kyodo news agency reported Thursday.

The agency's Peking correspondent, quoting wall posters, said the two groups clashed in a fight for control of a police station in Peking's western suburbs.

North Koreans Attack Outpost

SEOUL (UPI) — North Korean troops attacked a South Korean outpost near the central portion of the demilitarized zone between the two countries early today, the South Korean defense ministry reported. One North Korean was reported killed in a 20-minute gun battle.

Car Expert Quits

Weakened Rules Worth 'Nothing'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Steiglitz, one of the government's top safety engineers who helped write the new federal car safety standards, resigned Thursday charging that the standards "contribute nothing to auto safety."

Steiglitz, a pioneer in car and aviation safety, and a full-time consultant for the National Traffic Safety Agency, was accused by William Haddon, the government's traffic safety chief, of "pushing wildly impractical" car safety standards.

According to Haddon, Steiglitz's approach to the car safety problem would have forced the industry to build cars that in "some respects would have approached or exceeded the performance of a Sherman tank."

THREE WITHDRAWN

On Tuesday, the agency issued modified standards applying to 1968 cars to be produced this fall. It also withdrew three controversial standards previously prepared.

Steiglitz, who directed the engineering development of the standards, attacked the changes in his letter of resignation.

NOT ACCEPTABLE

"The standards are now so weakened from the proposed standards that, in my considered judgement as an engineering and safety specialist, they do not establish an acceptable minimum level of safety," he told a reporter.

Steiglitz said the standards originally proposed Nov. 30 were "technically feasible and attainable." He added: "Some involved only simple engineering and structural design."

CAN BE MEASURED

While the industry said it was impossible to measure the effectiveness of dashboard energy absorption, Steiglitz cited just such measurements made by Chrysler in 1965 and the Federal Aviation Agency.

For Now

U.S. Calls Tune

OTTAWA (CP) — United States car-safety laws will set the pattern for safety features in Canada until the federal and provincial governments decide which of them will make Canadian laws on the subject.

That was Industry Minister Drury's message to the Commons justice committee Thursday as a study resumed on proposals by private MPs that Parliament use its right to enact car-safety legislation.

The proposals would require a number of safety features and devices to be built into cars and make the industry responsible for maintaining safety.

APPROACH REJECTED

Mr. Drury's appearance before the committee, informal because the committee couldn't raise a quorum of 19 MPs, amounted to government rejection now of this approach.

Larry Sheffe, UAW international representative, said that 10 years ago the industry cut its inspection staff by half and gave responsibility for inspection to the production men.

Ship-Jumper Confesses

Uncle's Name O'Neal Union Official's Casey

VANCOUVER (CP) — Union organizer Pat O'Neal disclosed Thursday he came to Canada as a ship-jumper.

He said his real name is Thomas Joseph Casey and the name he has been using — Edward Patrick O'Neal — is that of an uncle in the United States.

Mr. O'Neal made the disclosures in answer to questioning by his lawyer, Edward Mortimer, at the opening of Thursday's sitting of a royal commission on electronic eavesdropping and invasion of privacy.

He told the commission he came to Victoria while working on a ship in 1947. He asked for a half-day off, left the ship and went to work.

"You mean you deserted?" asked Commissioner R. A. Sargent.

"Yes, your honor."

Mr. O'Neal, who now is western regional organizer for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper

Casey

Mill Workers, said he then had no passport and no landed immigrant status.

In 1952, when he was secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, he went to the Irish embassy to obtain a passport and to the immigration department to tell them of his background.

Three weeks later he was told he would get landed immigrant status, which subsequently was granted.

Mr. O'Neal became a central figure in the royal commission inquiry after he admitted hiring private detective Weldon Graham to place listening devices in downtown hotel rooms being used by delegates to a convention of the rival Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

The devices were discovered and Mr. O'Neal stated he had hired the detective after meeting with two members of the RCMP security and intelligence branch.

Premier Bennett ordered the commission.

Mr. O'Neal came under fire from other trade unionists, who demanded his resignation as an executive of the B.C. Federation of Labor. He resigned last week.

White House Fiasco

Cold Cuts with Everything

By MAXINE ORESKIRE

WASHINGTON (LAT) — Associate Justice William O. Douglas's 23-year-old bride has become something of a cause celebre since an embarrassing incident at a White House dinner.

At the state dinner where members of the Supreme Court and their wives were guests, the youthful Mrs. Douglas found herself seated at a table with actress Joan Crawford.

The one-time screen queen began a belittling barrage that continued throughout the meal. She insulted Cathy Douglas repeatedly with scathing, scornful remarks about her background, her manners and even her much-publicized love of the outdoors.

This situation got so tense that the three men seated closest to the two women rallied protectively around

Mrs. Douglas. Presidential assistant Joe Califano, between the ladies, tried gallantly to keep them separated verbally. The U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, Sol Linowitz, did what he could to divert Miss Crawford's attention.

Finally, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who was the host at that table, felt called upon to defend Mrs. Douglas and began answering every spiteful comment aimed at her.

This failed to put Miss Crawford in her place. She eventually made one action speak louder than all her unkind words. When finger bowls were set before each guest, she rose halfway out of her chair, and leaned across Califano. She then snatched dolly and all from in front of Mrs. Douglas and deposited them where Emily Post says they ought to be.

The implication was plain that a girl of landside origin, dining for the first time in such splendor, would not know what to do with a finger bowl unless shown.

The ordeal did not end until another male guest said gently: "Miss Crawford, you're too big a woman to behave in such a manner."

District 67 Board Rejects Mergers

LADYSMITH — District 67 School Board has passed a motion stipulating it's not in favor of any sort of amalgamation with other boards.

But it was a close scrape, the motion passing by only a 3-2 margin.

Trustee Howard Davis submitted the motion which read: "That the board of School District 67 (Ladysmith) go on record as not being in favor of changing the boundaries of the school district or any form of amalgamation with school districts 65 and 68."

After a tabling attempt was turned back, the motion squeezed through.

The board will hold a special meeting Wednesday to further discuss its proposed referendum.

DUNCAN — Services will be held Saturday for Caroline Ida Groves who died in King's Daughters Hospital Tuesday.

Born in County Carlow, Ireland, she came to Canada in 1914. After serving as a nurse in Edmonton Military Hospital, she moved to B.C. She was predeceased by her husband, the late Albert Groves.

PORT ALBERNI — Cargo exports from the busy harbor at Port Alberni show lumber exports more than doubled in January this year over the same month in 1966.

In all, 48,745 tons of lumber or 32,476,666 board feet were exported last month, compared to 15,928,000 board feet in January last year.

Harbormaster Don Brooks also reported 19,710 tons of paper, 6,160 tons of pulp and 6,075 tons of plywood, for a total of 80,650 tons compared to January 1966 when 53,284 tons of cargo were exported.

CAPE MUDGE — Dave Moon has been re-elected chief councillor for the Quadra Island Cape Mudge Indian Band.

Chief councillor Moon said council is studying the possibility of opening up a section of waterfront property for leasing. This section is between the village and Quathilisi Cove, below the newly-completed Government Road.

PORT ALBERNI — Funeral services will be held Saturday in Port Alberni for Karl Sawchuk, 67, of Hoy Lake Road, Qualicum, who died Jan. 31 at the Nanaimo Regional Hospital.

Mr. Sawchuk lived in the Alberni Valley for 20 years and was a logger at the Sproat Lake division, prior to moving to Qualicum. He was born in Russia 67 years ago.

DUNCAN — Daisy Burgess died here in her 76th year after a lengthy illness. Born in London, England, she went to the U.S., then moved to Saskatchewan in 1919.

She moved to Port Alberni in 1941, later to North Vancouver, and then retiring in Duncan.

She survived by one son and two sisters.

FULFORD — The Beaver Point Community Association elected its new officers at the annual meeting held recently in that district.

Elected to presidency is Gwen Ruckle; secretary-treasurer, Doris Anderson; social convener, Mrs. Emil Anderson; committee, Art Young and Mrs. Fred Saunders.

The meeting decided against having its famous yearly bean feast this year, which will be received with dismay by the 300 or so bean fans.

The promised donation of $25 towards the entrance fund for the Fulford Hall will be sent this month. Seventeen residents turned out for the meeting.

LAKE OUCHICHAN — About 25 people will participate in an all-out canvass for signatures supporting Lake Cowichan Chamber of Commerce demand for action on flood control.

The canvass will take place Thursday and Friday of next week.

Members from the Kiwanis as well as the chamber of commerce will go out on the door-to-door canvass.

New Ambulance Will Conclude Two Decades of 'Bargains'

By R. S. WOOD

LADYSMITH—This town is through with bargains in ambulances. Twenty years of ambulance experience has culminated in a decision to purchase a brand new one, fitted and equipped with the latest and best in ambulatory trimmings and necessities.

In late 1946 the first model—a wartime Chev—was acquired from the War Assets Corporation. It had given yeoman service at the Sea Island airfield and was nothing fancy, wherever the call said he had to. Indeed there were users who said the ambulance had no springs, or shackles or shock absorbers or anything. But it was a bargain.

After a few years the Ladysmith Kinsmen Club decided to make the acquisition of another ambulance their main project for that year, and raised the wind sufficiently that a small added contribution from city council clinched the deal. It was not a new model and it was by no means the best model. But it was an improvement on the other, and it was a bargain.

IT WAS NURSED

Service station owner Joe Grouhel housed it, nursed it, cleaned and fed it, and drove it, anywhere in the woods,

Courtenay, Victoria or far up the Fraser Valley as needed. And the day came when it was time for a change, so the Kinsmen rallied and made another project for another ambulance, and in due course the plan materialized and this time it was a huge and slightly vintage Cadillac that bore the cross and the crest. It was slouchy, large and reputedly comfortable. Best of all, it was a great bargain.

SMALL REGARD

Unfortunately, it was publicly regarded as no great shakes. Indeed there were allegations that driver Grouhel was actually ashamed of it, and that between calls he would hide it somewhere out of his and the public vision.

Clamor for a better deal ended in the formation of a public meeting of the Ladysmith Ambulance Association, and this industrious group has raised more than $10,000 towards the purchase of a new vehicle.

Bathtub Derby Nearing

NANAIMO — The Great Centennial Bathtub Race will be held in July.

And according to its originator Frank Ney, "the entries are pouring in."

The winning bathtub skipper will win a $100 prize for the 22-mile water crossing to West Vancouver.

Mr. Ney said the standard tubs will be powered by 6-horsepower outboard motors and will carry compasses and sails.

Mr. Ney, who is centennial chairman, expects the Great Bathtub Crossing to take about six hours.

Kinsmen Historians

DUNCAN — One of the major projects for the Kinsmen is compiling a comprehensive history of the club from 1928 to 1967.

Historians, Bill Taylor and Tom Stanko ask for public assistance with pictures, newspapers articles and other information for the years 1928, and 1943 to 1947.

The history will depict the growth of Duncan and Kin in the last 30 years.

Bylaw Getting Sharper Teeth

LADYSMITH — Some of the dogs are raising their ugly hackles again, especially those without licences or other visible means of control.

Council members won't stand for it, and suggested sharper teeth for the dog bylaw.

"We don't seem to be able to find the answer to this dog trouble," remarked Mayor Grouhel.

"I think I'll turn the problem over to you four aldermen as a committee to come up with the answer. And if you are going to add some sharper teeth to the bylaw, may I suggest that you must be prepared to bite some of the culprits with it. A bylaw is only as effective as its enforcement."

It was admitted, however, that the dog nuisance situation is very much better than it was a year ago. Court action in one instance is pending, and another complaint is being investigated. These involve unlicensed dogs running at large.

Pollution Topic

Company Invited To Big Meeting

PORT ALBERNI — Guest speakers at the annual meeting of the Alberni Valley Citizens Committee on Pollution will include representatives of MacMillan Bloedel.

The announcement was made by Colin Wilson, chairman of the pollution committee, who said the company representatives will outline measures already taken to curb pollutant pollution and those planned to curb pollution in future.

WATER POLLUTION — The meeting will also see the election of officers of the anti-pollutionists for the coming year.

Particular attention will be paid to the water pollution in the Alberni Inlet and measures necessary to control and eliminate this problem as well as

Secession Bid On Minds Of 210 People

NORTH COWICHAN — Another secession petition from North Cowichan residents who want to join the city of Duncan brings the total of unsatisfied Southend taxpayers in this municipality to 210 people.

The latest petitioners will be advised that a resolution has been submitted to the Union of B.C. Municipalities to establish a commission which will study municipal boundaries and that a fact-finding committee has been appointed by council to obtain financial information.

One of the petitioners, M. A. Kinch, will be invited to attend the next council meeting to explain exactly what the petitioners want.

Taxpayers concerned live in the general area from Gibbins Road to the Cowichan River.

It is assumed a sewer by-law, defeated a few months ago, is the main reason for the desire to break away from the municipality.

So far four petitions have been received.

Reeve Donald Morton told council the total cost of the improvement of the Chemainus water system would likely be $250,000.

Council Will Support Chemainus Ratepayers

By KLAUS MUENTEE
NORTH COWICHAN — Council will come to the aid of Chemainus taxpayers who openly oppose a proposal by the Ladysmith School Board to centralize senior high school education at Ladysmith.

After listening to a delegation from the Chemainus Ratepayers and Citizens Association

Thursday afternoon, council unanimously agreed with Coun. Margaret Robertson and will make an attempt to meet with the Ladysmith School Board to discuss the problem.

The board also will be advised North Cowichan council is very concerned about education for students in the Ladysmith school district. Chemainus, although part of North Cowichan, belongs to the Ladysmith district.

IN COWICHAN
The rest of the municipality is in the Cowichan school district. President of the Chemainus ratepayers Louis Shelling said, "I find it incredible that the school board (Ladysmith) despite the defeat of the referendum in 1965 sees fit to put the same referendum again."

Centralization proposal by the Ladysmith board is being strongly opposed by Cyril White of Chemainus, a newly-elected trustee on that board, and veteran trustee Baden Millard, also of Chemainus.

Mr. White is also chairman of the Chemainus Ratepayers' education committee.

HEAVY DEFEAT
He said after the heavy defeat of the referendum no development took place until the end of 1965 when Ladysmith district superintendent Robert Price presented the board with four different plans for another referendum.

Mr. White advised council that Mr. Price is very concerned about another possible defeat of a bylaw because it would worsen the educational situation in the school district.

'CAN'T AFFORD'
"We cannot afford another defeat," Mr. White added. His suggestion rather than centralize senior high school education, both schools at Chemainus and Ladysmith should be developed simultaneously to raise standards, found general approval by the board.

Particularly so after council learned the latter proposal would save taxpayers as much as $250,000.

CO-OPERATION
Mr. White suggested besides raising standards at both schools by individual development, the Ladysmith school district should co-operate with Cowichan and Nanaimo school districts so students from Ladysmith or Chemainus high schools could take courses that would not be offered at either school.

The Chemainus trustee stressed Chemainus would fare better by joining the Cowichan district rather than have the high school education centralized at Ladysmith.

In the latter case it would take another 10 years before satisfactory standards could be achieved.

Council learned from Mr.

White the Ladysmith school board will not consider any other alternative but centralization at Ladysmith.

WHAT GROUND
He said, "They also turned down a proposal to seek help in other areas (Cowichan and Nanaimo)."

Reeve Donald Morton said, "If we had a discussion on the council we would feel that there was too much to ask the people."

He suggested the school board should make a unanimous decision because taxpayers will often follow the advice of a majority.

Trustee Baden Millard remarked, "I can't see in what board."

DUNCAN — Two Lake Cowichan men were convicted of attempted burglary and entering Thursday.

A second charge of possessing burglary tools was stayed. Magistrate George Hallett said the circumstantial evidence was so consistent it left no doubt in his mind as to their guilt.

He sentenced Melvin Joseph Doucette, 21, and William Ross Sidoruk, 30, to one year's imprisonment.

The offence took place Jan. 2.

Defence lawyer Jack Gatehouse of Victoria said the Crown's case was based entirely on circumstantial evidence.

Prosecuting lawyer Dave Williams said, "These people need not have laid a hand on the doorway. It is the positive act which substantiates this charge."

They said the two never left during that time.

Mr. Williams said they must have been "clock watchers."

He said circumstantial evidence must be concurrent with guilt and no other sensible explanation.

Buttle Lake Tiff

Mine President Denies Seepage

Western Mines President H. M. Wright Thursday night denied there was continued seepage of wastes into Buttle Lake from Western Mines' operation on Myra Creek.

"So far as I know there's no leak," he said the Colonist by telephone from his Vancouver home.

"And I spoke to the staff of our mine as recently as Thursday afternoon. They told me everything was normal."

But a number of Campbell River people claimed pollution is still spoiling the lake.

INADEQUATE
They said Thursday precautions taken by the mine to prevent seepage are inadequate to keep tailings from entering Myra Creek and flowing into the lake.

Anthony Sarich, lawyer for the Greater Campbell River Water District, threatened court action soon if the seepage does not stop.

Larry Widen, president of the Campbell River and District Pollution Control Society, said his group also intends to take action but declined to outline any plans.

BIG BLAST
Their complaint that the lake is still being polluted came after the provincial government's Buttle Lake pollution policies were blasted Tuesday by a group of biologists.

Sarich and Widen, and number of other community leaders in Campbell River, welcomed the report, prepared by the B.C. chapter of the Canadian Society of Wildlife and Fishery Biologists.

A total of 53 biologists, 17 of them in the provincial civil service, signed the report, which accused the government of accepting un sound proposals for dumping tailings in the lake.

TAILING POND
Mr. Widen, who visited the mine earlier this week, said an eight-inch pipe is supposed to carry overflow water from the tailing pond into Myra Creek.

"But the finer particles of tailings form a scum over the top of the pond and this is being carried by the pipe into the creek."

"You can see these particles bursting into Myra Creek from the overflow pipe. The shores are covered with a greyish-blue sludge."

NO ALTERNATIVE
Mr. Sarich said the board will have no other alternative than to seek an injunction against the mine if the seepage doesn't stop soon.

Mr. Wright, in his reply, stressed that things were normal at the mine.

"I'm in engineering business and what some lawyer says doesn't bother me that much," he pointed out.

"I would say we're going about it in a businesslike manner."

"And I would say just about everyone is forgetting one point — just what is pollution?"

I think what we have to take into consideration is the degree of pollution, since even cigarettes must be considered as pollutants.

"And I also feel that our side of the story is not being presented often enough."

Woman Motorist Ruled Off Road

NANAIMO — A woman was prohibited from driving for two years as a result of a hit-and-run accident.

Mrs. Victoria McMillan, 51, 625 Chelsea, pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident Jan. 12.

Magistrate Eric Wisch felt a heavy fine would serve no useful purpose as Mrs. McMillan is on welfare.

"I don't think you should be driving," he said.

In another case, John William Bridden, 44, was convicted of impaired driving.

He was fined $250 and prohibited from driving for six months.

He had driven his car off the road and into a ditch Dec. 26. The incident followed a long day of drinking.

Esquimalt MLA Criticizes CPR

The Canadian Pacific Railway is trying to "chuck" its responsibility to communities along its subsidiary line, the E & N Railway, between Victoria and Nanaimo, Herbert Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) said in the Legislature Thursday.

The province had granted the federal government lands in trust which were subsequently allocated to the CPR, he said. Now the federal government was permitting the CPR to abandon uneconomic lines and services.

"I don't think it's fair that they can abandon their responsibility while retaining their rights and privileges as they are trying to do now," he said.

Mr. Bruch called for higher daytime rates and extra night sailings on the B.C. Ferry Authority's Mainland-Vancouver Island route. He suggested the higher rates would discourage routine daytime freight traffic in favor of night shipping.

The government's intention to end "drop-trailer" service for freight trucks on government ferries between Vancouver Island and the Mainland would leave truckers "dependent on the CPR monopoly" which provides the only other route, he said.

A Social Credit MLA had made a "shocking revelation" when he said there had been a leak from the highways department on the route of the new Patricia Bay Highway north from Victoria, Ian MacFarlane (C-Oak Bay) said.

ADVANTAGE TAKEN
The accusation was based on published statements by John Tisdalle (BC-Saanich and the Islands) in which he had complained that some businessmen were taking advantage of prior knowledge.

Mr. MacFarlane said there should be an investigation and "if these charges are true then this government has a shocking scandal on its hands."

Mr. Tisdalle should prove his charges, resign, or stop sitting as a Social Credit member, Mr. MacFarlane said.

Two others are understood to have been taken for observation, suffering only minor injuries.

AN RCMP officer who attended the accident scene said the road was wet, but that the cars did not leave the road. "The accident happened on the Trans-Canada Highway at the intersection of Allenby Road and both cars were badly damaged," he said.

Peterson Hit By Unionist

Angus Macphie, vice-president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, has called Labor Minister Peterson's Dave Stupich one of "embarrassed deception."

Mr. Macphie was referring to Mr. Peterson's reply to a charge made by Mr. Stupich that the Labor Relations Board had been moved by outside political pressure to deny Harman workers a vote on union representation.

In a prepared statement for the Colonist, Mr. Macphie said: "Peterson's rebuttal inferred that it was somehow immoral for Stupich to accompany a union delegation of Canadian Pulp Workers bringing their concern to him."

"I suggest Mr. Peterson is presenting a deliberately naive and unintelligent front," Mr. Macphie charged.

"If public servants disregard the merits of a case they are making a political decision."

BY ACTION
"In our case the board's attitude can be partly illustrated by their action in rushing to the windows of the board room to watch a fire engine when our lawyer was presenting our case."

"Such rudeness should not be ignored, and it is indicative of a commitment made prior to the hearing."

"It is not only correct that we should approach Mr. Peterson, it is the logical step when we believe public services have been denied," Mr. Macphie continued.

Juvenile Given 30 Months

NANAIMO — A juvenile with a record of 40 convictions was sentenced to a total of 30 months in Oakalla.

Oletha Baxter McKenna King, 16, was found to be a habitual delinquent and sentenced to 18 months definite and one year indeterminate for breaking, entering and assault.

A history of convictions dating from 1965 was topped by an assault committed by another juvenile, on Harvey Murphy, a Breman Lake School for Boys supervisor, during an escape, Sept. 1.

Mr. Murphy suffered a gash on the head and locked himself in a cell to escape further attacks.

Victoria Expert Frowns At Movie Drunk-Cure

By RAY KERR

Certain movies of drunks are invaluable in rehabilitation work, but a new film technique is not favored by a Victoria Salvation Army official.

The new technique, based on the old theme of "if only you could have seen yourself," is being tried in experiments in the U.S.

In the experiment, some problem drinkers are showed movies of their antics while under the influence, with success claimed in several cases.

But in the experiment, subjects are brought in drunk,

Technique Called Gamble

sobered up, then offered a drink. That's when cameras roll.

"This is the part I object to," said Brig. Cecil Bonar, newly in charge of Salvation Army's men's social and rehabilitation centre here.

"I can't see us giving any alcoholic a drink on a gamble that it'll help him. We try to make them give up drinking."

FILMS CAN HELP
But the officer, who's worked with Sally Ann in welfare across Canada and came here two months ago, thinks movies can do a great deal.

"We show Skid Row movies all the time," he pointed out. "And I think they have a strong impact."

NO PREDICTION
"Of course, we're just trying to start this work," Dr. Cornelson said, "so I would not dare try to predict any long-range results."

"But believe me, we've already learned that self-image experience is a tremendously powerful technique for reaching the alcoholic."

Alcoholics involved in the program show marks of the classic problem drinker.

AND CONTINUE
They start out with good jobs and prove themselves ... start drinking ... lose job, family, reputation — and continue on the bottle.

The subjects are sobered up in a hospital setting and then offered a drink, with the cameras put in motion.

Subjects gradually become tipsy. Later, they view the movies. Speaking of one man undergoing the test, Dr. Cornelson reported:

WORK PATTERN

"His response was nothing short of dramatic. Since then his interest in himself, his ability to work with the therapist, his improved daily work pattern, his diminished drinking — all suggest a definite change for the better."

So far, according to the experimenters, the three subjects involved have made favorable changes in their lives. Two have regular jobs — after being on the sidelines for years.

SHOULDN'T START

However, as Brig. Bonar points out, people shouldn't start rushing to make home movies of alcoholics in an attempt to help them.

It's just an experiment, he warned, and, as he stressed earlier, "giving alcoholics a drink doesn't seem to be the right way of going about it."

Offender Jailed

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Badle, 37, of no fixed address, has been declared to be a dangerous sexual offender and was sentenced to an indefinite term in jail.

Wingless Plane Tested

The HL-10 wingless lifting body built by Northrop Corporation for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, is shown just before touching down at Edwards AFB, Calif., after successfully making its first free flight on Dec. 22. HL-10 was flown by Bruce A. Peterson, chief pilot for NASA's Flight Research Centre at Edwards AFB. After being air launched from wing of B-52 flying at 45,000 feet, 9000-pound HL-10's free flight was of three minutes, seven seconds duration. Final horizontal landing speed was 264 miles per hour. HL-10 is second of two lifting body research craft built for NASA by Northrop, first being M2 which has made total of 14 free flights since its initial one in July 1966.

He 'Knows People,' Press Too

John D Booster Joins Race

By FRASER KELLY,
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Alberta MP, Hugh Horner, who wants to "get rid of the garbage in parliament" and "take the tariff off lariat ropes," announced Thursday he intends to run for the leadership of the Conservative party.

In a shot-from-the-hip

press conference which dumfounded newsmen, the 42-year-old surgeon said he would run against leader John Diefenbaker whom he described as "the greatest politician in our history."

He spent most of the news conference scorching newsmen for "crucifying" Mr. Diefenbaker. He added that most parliamentary reporters and television commentators are left-wing incompetents unqualified for their jobs.

And he agreed with his brother Jack (Cousin Acadia) who said last week newsmen here are "vultures" who pick the bones of politicians and ignore serious news.

As a matter of fact, he said, it was the press coverage of the recent transport debate which convinced him to seek the leadership.

With the air of pugnacious confidence that has made him and his brother legends in Parliament Hill, Dr. Horner stared down newsmen who questioned his qualifications and seriousness.

His main qualification, he

Ship-Jumper Confesses

Uncle's Name O'Neal Union Official's Casey

VANCOUVER (CP) — Union organizer Pat O'Neal disclosed Thursday he came to Canada as a ship-jumper.

He said his real name is Thomas Joseph Casey and the name he has been using — Edward Patrick O'Neal — is that of an uncle in the United States.

Mr. O'Neal made the disclosures in answer to questioning by his lawyer, Edward Mortimer, at the opening of Thursday's sitting of a royal commission on electronic eavesdropping and invasion of privacy.

He told the commission he came to Victoria while working on a ship in 1947. He asked for a half-day off, left the ship and went to work.

"You mean you deserted?" asked Commissioner R. A. Sargent.

"Yes, your honor."

Mr. O'Neal, who now is western regional organizer for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper

Casey

Mill Workers, said he then had no passport and no landed immigrant status.

In 1962, when he was secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, he went to the Irish embassy to obtain a passport and to the immigration department to tell them of his background.

Three weeks later he was told he would get landed immigrant status, which subsequently was granted.

Mr. O'Neal became a central figure in the royal commission inquiry after he admitted hiring private detective Weldon Graham to place listening devices in downtown hotel rooms being used by delegates to a convention of the rival Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

The devices were discovered and Mr. O'Neal stated he had hired the detective after meeting with two members of the RCMP security and intelligence branch.

Premier Bennett ordered the commission.

Mr. O'Neal came under fire from other trade unionists, who demanded his resignation as an executive of the B.C. Federation of Labor. He resigned last week.

Car Expert Quits

Weakened Rules Worth 'Nothing'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—William Steiglitz, one of the government's top safety engineers who helped write the new U.S. car safety standards, resigned Thursday charging that the standards "contribute nothing to auto safety."

Steiglitz, a pioneer in car and aviation safety, and a full-time consultant for the National Traffic Safety Agency, was accused by William Haddon, the government's traffic safety chief, of "pushing wildly impractical" car safety standards.

According to Haddon, Steiglitz's approach to the car safety problem would have forced the industry to build cars that in "some respects would have approached or exceeded the performance of a Sherman tank."

THREE WITHDRAWN

On Tuesday, the agency issued modified standards applying to 1968 cars to be produced this fall. It also withdrew three controversial standards previously prepared.

Steiglitz, who directed the engineering development of the standards, attacked the changes in his letter of resignation.

NOT ACCEPTABLE

"The standards are now weakened from the proposed standards that, in my considered judgement as an engineering and safety specialist, they do not establish an acceptable minimum level of safety," he told a reporter.

Steiglitz said the standards originally proposed Nov. 30 were "technically feasible and attainable." He added: "Some involved only simple engineering and structural design."

CAN BE MEASURED

While the industry said it was impossible to measure the effectiveness of dashboard energy absorption, Steiglitz cited just such measurements made by Chrysler in 1965 and the Federal Aviation Agency.

For Now

U.S. Calls Tune

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave second reading, or approval in principle, Thursday night to the government's controversial armed forces unification bill after rejecting 88 to 75 a Conservative amendment to send the bill to committee without second-reading approval.

It made for a surprise ending to a debate which most MPs had originally predicted would last about two weeks.

The Conservative move sought to refer the legislation to the defence and external affairs committees for public hearing before a vote on second reading — the key stage involving approval in principle.

LIFE AT STAKE

A legal authority said adoption of the motion would have killed the bill and could have brought down the minority government.

The 64 Conservatives on hand drew voting support from 11 NDP members.

Ranked against them were 78 Liberals, six Creditists, three Social Credit members and one independent, Maurice Allard (Sherbrooke).

ALMOST HOUR

The Commons division bells rang for almost an hour to summon MPs for the vote.

Immediately after the defeat of the Conservative amendment was announced, a vote was called on the government motion for second reading. No opposition MP rose to keep the debate going.

The second vote was 98 to 62.

SWITCHED SIDES

This time only 62 Conservatives opposed the government. The 78 Liberals drew support from 10 NDP members, six Creditists, three Social Credit members and Mr. Allard.

Standings in the 265-seat House are: Liberals 130, Conservatives 98, NDP 21, Creditists 8, Social Credit 5, Independent 3, vacant 2.

HELLYER PRESSED

Earlier Thursday Conservative speakers in the debate continued to press Defence Minister Hellyer to allow committee hearings before the vote was called.

Mr. Hellyer insisted on following the regular House procedure

Budget Today: $700,000,000?

Premier Bennett will bring down his budget for the 1967-68 fiscal year in the legislature at 2:30 a.m. today. The Throne Speech debate wound up Thursday.

It is expected the budget will surpass the $700,000,000 mark, compared with B.C.'s total of about $650,000,000 for the current fiscal year which ends March 31.

The new budget will include an estimated $23,600,000 in additional tax rebates from Ottawa, to replace several federal-provincial cost-sharing programs which expire March 31.

Buttle Lake Attack

Were Experts Ignored? Liberal Asks

By Legislative Reporter

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane demanded an explanation from the government Thursday about why it did not seek the advice of its own biologists before allowing Western Mines Ltd. to dump its waste products into Buttle Lake.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Klerman, who spoke later in the throne speech debate, offered no answer to his questions. But Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch told the House Strathcona Park is being polluted by the manner in which the problem is being handled.

(See also Page 13.) Mr. Bruch, a Social Credit backbencher who was recently appointed deputy speaker, said it is unfortunate the Campbell River Water District took action which led to the stockpiling of mine tailings on land.

RAIN DOES IT

Heavy rainfall of up to 140 inches per year "is actually polluting the area which would not have been polluted had the tailings been put into the lake," he said.

A legislative committee was advised long ago that any tailings deposited on the surface of the land would be washed back into the streams and surface of the lake by the heavy rainfall, Mr. Bruch recalled.

TAILINGS FILED

Western Mines has been stockpiling its mine tailings in a tailings pond since three disposal permits issued by the Pollution Control Board were

Cold Cuts with Everything

By MAXINE CHESHIRE

WASHINGTON (LAT) — Elderly Justice William O. Douglas's 23-year-old bride has become something of a cause celebre since an embarrassing incident at a White House dinner.

At the state dinner where members of the Supreme Court and their wives were guests, the youthful Mrs. Douglas found herself seated at a table with actress Joan Crawford.

The one-time screen queen began a belittling barrage that continued throughout the meal. She insulted Cathy Douglas repeatedly with scathing, scornful remarks about her background, her manners and even her much-publicized love of the outdoors.

This situation got so tense that the three men seated closest to the two women rallied protectively around

Mrs. Douglas. Presidential assistant Joe Califano, between the ladies, tried gallantly to keep them separated verbally. The U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, Sol Linowitz, did what he could to divert Miss Crawford's attention.

Finally, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who was the host at that table, felt called upon to defend Mrs. Douglas and began answering every spiteful comment aimed at her.

This failed to put Miss Crawford in her place. She eventually made one action speak louder than all her unkind words. When finger bowls were set before each guest, she rose halfway out of her chair, and leaned across Califano. She then snatched dolly and all from in front of Mrs. Douglas and deposited them where Emily Post says they ought to be.

The implication was plain that a girl of humble origins, dining for the first time in such splendor, would not know what to do with a finger bowl unless shown.

***

The ordeal did not end until another male guest said gently: "Miss Crawford, you're too big a woman to behave in such a manner."

More Money

Parking
Needs
Pressed

City Hall wants to drive ahead with the building of parking buildings in downtown Victoria, and council will be asked to provide more money.

At present, all income from parking meters, less the cost of maintenance and the equivalent in cash of one mill on the city's tax rate, is put into an off-street parking reserve fund which is used to provide buildings.

The Downtown Merchants' Association has complained that when the decision was made in 1961, the money equivalent of one mill, which is turned back to the city, was $94,852. Since then it has grown.

Now, although the parking meter income has remained about static, the value of a mill was (in 1966) $116,130.

That meant, Mayor Hugh Stephen explained Thursday to the city council finance committee, that much less was being turned back to the fund for parking buildings. In 1967 the mill will be worth almost $120,000, which would mean that the fund was receiving $25,000 less each year than it did when it was originated.

"It is not really fair, and it's vital to the city that we have these buildings," the mayor said. "After all, if we are to maintain our downtown in a healthy state and keep it from being supplanted by some other 'downtown,' parking, and roads are most important."

BYLAW CHANGE

Accordingly, the committee will ask council to alter its bylaws setting the city's "drag" from the parking meter income at a fixed $95,000.

It will also ask that the profit (less expenses) from the parking buildings on Yates and View be turned back to the fund for new facilities.

There are three such buildings in the city. The one in Centennial Square is wholly owned by the city, while the buildings on Yates and View were built on debenture issues underwritten by downtown businessmen and for which they are paying by a superimposed levy of up to five mills on their tax rates.

Negotiations are now in progress for land on the north side of Johnson Street, between Douglas and Blanshard, as a site for a new building.

According to the weather bureau there were 62.9 hours of bright sunshine during January. Snowfall was much below

Merger Vote Near
For Peninsula Tip

Annexation of Sidney and North Saanich will likely be put to a vote at the end of the year, North Saanich Reeve J. B. Cunningham said Thursday.

All information on the change will be accumulated by June, and from then on it will be a question of educating residents.

POPULATION BASIS

Reeve Cunningham said that, if the two districts were to amalgamate, it would be as a district municipality, because a status was calculated on population per acre.

He had no idea what name would be given to the municipality. "When we are ready to think of things like that there will be plenty of people with ideas," he said.

Both areas would derive benefits from amalgamation. "The principal benefit would be the savings we would gain, instead of having two small districts running around trying to get things done."

Reeve Cunningham said one shopping centre, in Sidney,

would be better than several scattered around.

BOUND TO GROW

"North Saanich is bound to grow, because we have the room for expansion, but Sidney has little room."

"The annual assessment value for North Saanich is about $8,000,000, while Sidney's is just over $2,250,000," added the reeve.

Spring Flowers Later

Survival of the Fete

The Spring Flower Festival weathered a few storms Thursday at the Victoria Chamber of Commerce's tourist industry committee meeting.

The festival will be held in May instead of early in April, as last year.

"We found out that was too early last year," committee-man Pat Frumento said after the meeting. "Later on we'll have warmer weather and better crowds."

Alternately challenged as too little, too soon, an "abortive effort" and "too much work for too few people," the festival prevailed and now is scheduled for immediately after the Victoria Day celebration, if feasible.

Opponent Bernard Cox said, "For the money and time expended, the spring flower festival is not worthwhile."

Committee chairman William Cox said, "It is a lot of work for a few people, and probably too large a project for this committee."

"Give it a couple more years and let it develop," said Mr. Frumento. "It has been increasing in popularity the last two or three years."

"It could be a benefit," Mr. Cox retorted, "but it should have a paid manager."

"It is time we took off our little short pants and took the long view," said Edward McFayden, past chairman of the Victoria Day celebration.

Mr. Frumento agreed heartily, and proposed Mr. McFayden for chairman of the festival committee. He accepted, after it was decided the festival be staged.

The committee agreed to call on the tourist bureau and visitors' bureau for help in promoting and staging the celebration, and gave Mr. McFayden a free hand to develop entertainment. He was entrusted with studying the feasibility of the proposed dates, May 23 to 28.

The committee approved organization of a goodwill tour of Alberta some time late in September to show films and other promotional material to groups in major cities.

Russ Hay, a Victoria cycling enthusiast and Island representative of a dominion cycling group, asked for some chamber help in promoting a Vancouver Island cycling race.

The committee voted to take the matter to an associated Island chambers meeting, to determine the feeling of other communities.

Predictions that the Victoria tax rate will be nudged sharply upward were buttressed Thursday when City Treasurer James Bramley indicated increased school costs alone would make it impossible to hold the line at 62.5 mills.

The treasurer said non-shareable costs in the massive $15,355,738 Greater Victoria school district budget would amount to $1,700,000 and that sum alone could boost the rate by six mills.

WAIT FOR PROVINCE

The treasurer was careful to qualify his statement, however. No final figure could be given, he said, until the province announced the extent of its grants.

"The government has always come through in the past, and we are certainly hoping that it will do so again," Mr. Bramley said.

Mayor Stephen said the total school board budget was up 18.7 per cent in Victoria and he had been informed by other municipal leaders that their increases were about the same. In Central Saanich costs were up 18 per cent.

In the course of discussion Mr. Bramley said that in 1967 the value of one mill on the tax rate would be close to $130,000 as compared to $116,130 in 1966.

The value of the mill has climbed steadily over the past five years, with its greatest leap in 1966, when it increased $12,909.

Mayor Stephen said members of city council had been invited to sit in with school board members at a budget discussion Feb. 16.

GENERAL RATE

"There is, of course, nothing we can do to alter the school board budget and the school rate (23.2 in 1966), which is added to the general rate set by the city," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood.

"Still, it is informative to talk the matter over with school board members."

A collie of champion blood-line is missing from her Langford home.

The owners, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Flynn of 828 Hockley Road, are puzzled by the disappearance of the dog and fear she may have been stolen.

"We're quite worried," Mrs. O'Flynn said Thursday night. "She never wandered before. Why should she go now?"

The collie, worth $500, O'Flynn's Bold Bonny Lass. She was born three years ago last Christmas Day, is brown with a white ruff, four white paws and a white tip on her tail.

Her mate, O'Flynn's Big Bold Image, called King, is beginning to fret at Bonny's absence and is off his food.

The pair have produced two litters, 14 pups in July, 1965, and 10 in September, 1966. King is from the U.S. and Bonny's ancestors are from England.

"They are the same kind of collie as Lassie," Mrs. O'Flynn said.

The valuable dog was last seen when she had her supper Friday night. She was gone Saturday morning. The two dogs slept in the backyard in a kennel.

Housing Plan
'Socialistic'

Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch surprised the members on the government side of the legislature Thursday when he declared that public housing is "purely a socialistic venture" and that he doesn't want to see much of this in British Columbia.

The Socialist MLA warned that most of the people in this province would be lining up for row houses if the government decides to subsidize this type of venture.

He said it would be far better to assist people in buying new homes or in fixing up old ones. (See also Page 32.)

"If we find $500 is not enough (the amount proposed for the new home acquisition grant) let's make it $1,000," said Mr. Bruch, as Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell looked on in wonder.

"But I think we'd be doing an injustice to be going into rows and rows of public housing."

Public housing is "not the end all" in idyllic living, the Esquimalt MLA told the legislature. "You should go out to the navy housing area in my constituency" which has its own form of "class segregation."

"They have the best of houses, facilities, subsidized rentals, playgrounds, good class citizens—yet most will tell you after being there a year or two they're only glad to get out, because they don't have the normal system of checks and balances."

Mr. Bruch also proposed a ferry link between Sooke and U.S. coastal highway 101 west of Port Angeles as a fast route for trucks and through traffic, as a continuing policy of bypassing traffic away from cities.

He called for study on the effects of the use of detergents in his riding where septic tanks are used, because soil problems are occurring and "unless we lick this problem we may have to go into costly sewage systems."

Tisdalle Explains

Road 'Scandal'
All a Mistake

A demand by Oak Bay Liberal MLA Allan Macfarlane for a full-scale government investigation of a statement by John Tisdalle was answered Thursday by the Saanich and the Islands Social Creditor himself.

Mr. Macfarlane demanded in the legislature earlier Thursday a probe of Mr. Tisdalle's House statement Tuesday that businessmen have maps of the proposed route of the new Patricia Bay Highway.

He said Mr. Tisdalle "made a shocking revelation when he charged they had been a leak from the highways department" about the route.

"If these charges are true, Mr. Speaker, then the government has a shocking scandal on its hands," said Mr. Macfarlane. "The member has said somebody has inside information and is speculating."

The Oak Bay member challenged Mr. Tisdalle to "prove his charges or resign," and said the government should resign if the charges are true.

But Mr. Tisdalle later explained outside the House the Oak Bay member "got the wrong impression from my speech Tuesday and interpreted my remarks in a way which I had not intended."

He said the highways department's survey stakes are in plain sight on the Saanich Peninsula and the plans with which businessmen are making decisions were contained in a capital region transportation study published in March of 1965.

WAITING LIST

These maps "have been published in our papers, which no doubt has furnished enough material for interested parties and businessmen to dig out for their own benefit," Mr. Tisdalle said.

Mr. Macfarlane also told the House 946 students from Victoria schools will have no place to go for vocational training this year because there is a two-year waiting list at the B.C. Institute of Technology in Burnaby, and the vocational school project here is stalled because the government can't find a place for a B.C. Hydro truck parking lot.

He urged the government to build new ferries which could be used for hauling just freight, and said the government should offer a matching grant toward the cost of building a convention centre here.

$10 Reward

A Christmas-present bicycle was stolen last week from the home of Robert Earl, 12, of 841 Viewfield, and mother Mrs. Lucille Earl, who is on welfare, says a friend has offered a $10 reward for its return. Information about the green Sunstar with a banana-style seat should be given to Esquimalt police or Mrs. Earl at 382-7336.
